

CAPONE CARRIES HIS CASE UP TO SUPREME COURT

Petition Requesting Review Of Conviction Is Filed Today

Washington, April 22—(AP)—Al Capone today filed in the Supreme Court a petition asking a review of the action of the Seventh Circuit Court of Appeals affirming his conviction and penitentiary sentence on the charge of evading federal taxes.

In his petition Capone asserted that he had not been informed by the indictment filed against him of the nature and cause of certain accusations, because the indictment had been drawn in general terms which, he said, contrary to a rule of the Supreme Court.

Capone cited as a second ground for asking the review that certain counts in the indictment had been held by the lower courts to set up an offense against the United States when they did not allege that he had failed to pay taxes. This he asserted had failed to bring him within the statute he was charged with violating.

Capone was sentenced to ten years at the Leavenworth penitentiary and an additional term of one year in the county jail following his conviction on the charge of violating the federal income tax law.

Commitment Stayed
The grounds for the prosecution were based on the charge that he had evaded the federal taxes by failing to report income received from various underground sources.

The Seventh Circuit Court of Appeals stayed his commitment to the penitentiary and permitted him to remain in the jail at Chicago where he has been since his conviction in the Federal District Court.

It provided, however, that the stay should be limited to thirty days which was considered sufficient to permit him to prepare and file in the Supreme Court there a petition for review.

The fact that the petition was filed today will be used as the basis for asking that the mandate be further held up and that Capone be permitted to remain in the Chicago jail until the Supreme Court can have an opportunity to pass on his petition and decide whether it will grant a review.

It is understood that every possible effort will be made to get the petition before the Supreme Court at the earliest date.

Should it be possible to submit the petition next Monday the court would have opportunity to examine it and decide by the following Monday what action it would take.

The Supreme Court will end oral arguments for the term during the coming week and should it grant a review the case could not be heard until next October unless the court fixed a special date to hear it some time in May.

FUNERAL OF MRS. FRANCES LETLIS HELD THIS MORN

Was Pioneer Settler Of Sublette; Died In Mendota

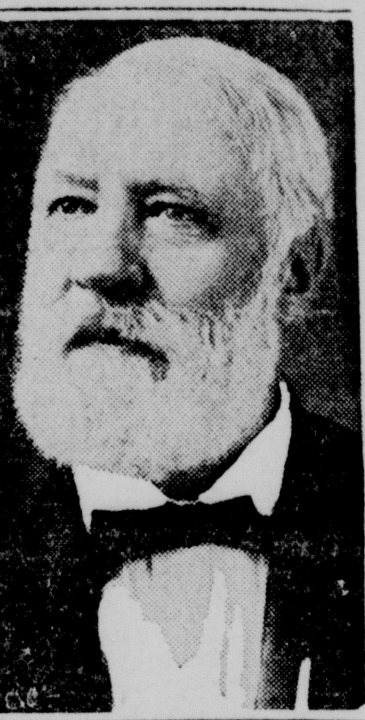

Funeral rites for Mrs. Frances Letl, pioneer settler of Sublette township, well known in Dixon and throughout Lee and LaSalle counties, were held this morning from St. Mary's Catholic church at Mendota, Rev. Leo J. Wissing conducting requiem high mass at 9 o'clock, followed with interment in St. Mary's cemetery at Sublette.

Mrs. Letl was found dead in bed at her home in Mendota at noon Wednesday. Her grandson, Alonzo Blass, resided at her home during recent years, but two weeks ago moved into a home across the street. Testifying at the inquest Wednesday evening, Mr. Blass, who discovered the body Wednesday, declared that Mrs. Letl apparently was in fairly good health, although complaining at times of dizziness and pains in the head. He declared he last saw his grandmother alive Monday evening. Mr. Blass said that upon his return to his home for lunch shortly after noon he went to Mrs. Letl's home and found her dead in bed and summoned a physician.

Mrs. Letl is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Harriett Blass, Mendota; three sons, Max of Mattoon, Frank of Sublette and Charles of Chicago. Eleven grandchildren and five great grandchildren also survive. She was the widow of the late Joseph Letl, who died several years ago, and she was born in Germany in 1848, coming to the United States about 50 years ago. For the past 10 years she had resided in Mendota. Previous to that time she had lived in Sublette.

JONES PLEADED GUILTY TO TWO COUNTS: FINED

Admitted Possession And Sale Of Intoxicating Liquor

Robert Jones who formerly conducted a service station and lunch stand known as the Log Cabin, just east of the city limits on the Black Hawk Trail, appeared before Judge Leech in the county court yesterday afternoon with his counsel, Attorney Edward Jones and entered a plea of guilty to a charge of possession and sale of intoxicating liquor. He was assessed a fine of $200 and the costs and was ordered placed on probation for a period of one year.

Dr. Leland C. Asay of Rock Island, who was arrested by a deputy sheriff a few weeks ago while transporting a 200-gallon cargo of alcohol through the city paid a fine of $500 and costs in County Court this morning and was given his freedom. However, his liberty was short-lived, for he was met at the door of the court room by Deputy U. S. Marshal Berne and taken in custody to face charges of violation of the Federal prohibition laws. He was taken to Chicago for arraignment before a U. S. Commissioner.

The Moline optometrist was taken from the court house and placed in a car with two United States marshals who were thought to have taken him to Chicago for arraignment before Federal Commissioner Walker. It was also reported that the federal authorities planned to seize the new Chevrolet coupe which Asay was driving on the morning of April 7 when a deputy from Sheriff Richardson's office placed him under arrest as he drove through Dixon with a load of 204 gallons of alcohol believed to have been enroute from a Wisconsin still for consumption in the Moline and the tri-cities.

The jury in the County Court, which has reported five days without being pressed into service in the trial of a case, was dismissed until a later call. The remainder of the liquor cases appearing on the docket have been continued until May 10.

Negro Acquitted
A jury in the Circuit Court deliberated from 10:30 Thursday morning until 8 o'clock last night in arriving at a verdict of not guilty in the trial of Archie Madison, alias Archie Vaughn, local Negro, indicted on a charge of arson. Yesterday afternoon about 3 o'clock the jury is said to have requested his alleged confession, said to have been made to Deputy State Fire Marshal George Kirane of Belvidere, Chief of Police J. D. Van Bibber and Fire Chief William Mitchell in which he admitted firing the domicile which was occupied by Mrs. Clara Hart, for the purpose of examining Madison's signature.

With the receipt of the verdict after almost ten hours deliberation, resulted in Madison's immediate release from the county jail.

Would Turn Lands To Game Preserves
Chicago, April 22—(AP)—Edward A. O'Neal, president of the American Game Bureau Federation, proposed to the Izaak Walton League today that the government turn part of its farmlands into bird and game preserves, parks and forest areas.

"The government," he said, "having encouraged the cultivation of too much land must assume the responsibility for taking out of cultivation those lands least profitable to operate while at the same time piling up the perplexing surplus crops."

"Talk of withdrawing unprofitable farm lands from production is not idle theoretical discussion. In 1929 Tennessee farmers made $17,000,000 from timber cut on farm woodlots and sold as lumber, game pulp wood, fence posts and shingles and log houses."

JAPAN IN BLUNT WARNING TO ALL OTHER NATIONS

Determined To Retain Its Holding In Manchuria, Tokyo Says

Tokio, April 22—(AP)—A very blunt warning to the League of Nations and Soviet Russia to keep hands off Manchuria was laid down today by General Sadao O. Araki, Japanese Minister of War. The warning, issued in a speech at Osaka before the Kokuhonsha Patriotic Society, nucleus of the Japanese Nationalist movement, was later informally endorsed in Foreign Office and in other government quarters.

Japan's mission, he said, was to make Manchuria a "paradise on earth, safe for everybody," and nothing the League or anybody else did could make her deviate from that course.

After declaring Japan would resist resolutely any attempt by the League to apply the nine-power treaty, he turned to Soviet Russia and called attention to what he said was a threatening situation in North Manchuria due to Russia's massing troops on the frontier and strengthening her air force in the Far East.

Situation Serious
"We are unable to understand what these war-like preparations mean," he said. "The situation is becoming serious. Russia is concentrating four divisions in Siberia on the Manchurian border. We can only wait and see whether the storm breaks."

"It is time the Japanese made up their minds to cooperate wholeheartedly with the new regime in Manchuria for the establishment of a great civilization in the Far East," he continued. "The League of Nations or Soviet Russia may attempt to frustrate our efforts, since both object to our activities in that region, but they won't be permitted to turn us from our course. It is unnecessary for us to heed what they may say about us."

"A certain country is talking about applying the nine-power treaty in Manchuria. Japan will resolutely oppose such an attempt always."

RUSSIANS TAKE PLEDGE
Moscow, April 22—(AP)—The 17,000 members of the Soviet Trade Unions stood pledged today to defend their country, if need be, as news dispatches from the Far East told of new charges that Russian "White Guards" were active against the Soviets.

The Ninth All Union Congress of the Trades Unions made the pledge for its members last night, and, sending greetings to the Red Army and to Klementi E. Voroshiloff, War and Navy Commissar, called for increased watchfulness, especially in the Far East, against the menace of a bourgeois invasion.

It also obligated itself to extend military preparedness to the proletariat and the peasants, with a view to greatly enlarging the already comprehensive "patronage" of the Red Army.

HELD FOR FRAUD
Peru, Ill., April 22—(AP)—Philip Chance, 39, of Peoria was held to the grand jury today on charges of obtaining securities under false pretenses. He had been sought since 1929 on complaints of many women and business men that he fleeced them out of bonds given him to trade for other securities.

Terse Items Of News Gathered In Dixon During Day

TO STATE FARM

Deputy Sheriff Ward Miller went to Vandalia this morning to deliver to the state work farm, Harry Wright of Amboy, formerly of Dixon, who yesterday was sentenced to serve one year at the farm and pay a fine of $500 and the costs on a liquor violation charge.

GOLF COURSE OPEN
The Plum Hollow Golf Club will be thrown open for the membership Sunday morning, it was announced today. The greens are in excellent condition and while some of the early spring golfers have been practicing the regular season will formally open Sunday.

IN NEW LOCATION
George Campbell of the White Cross pharmacy has completed moving his stock and fixtures from the site across the alley, north of the Dixon theater to the former Dixon Trust & Savings Bank building. The stock has been rearranged, many alterations made and Mr. Campbell is now doing business in his new location.

BEG YOUR PARDON
The Telegraph was misinformed concerning the erection of a new house on the site of the old Sheriff hotel in Grand Detour, in its account last evening. The building, which is to be used as a coffee house, is being erected by N. C. Kammerer of Chicago, and not J. U. Weyant of this city.

HORNER GRATEFUL
Judge Henry Horner, thanked his party for giving him the nomination which he said was "generally regarded as tantamount to election," and outlined a platform on which he hoped the campaign would be fought.

Keynote Campbell in his opening address outlined a platform later in the day. He discussed among other things the depression, repeal of prohibition laws, state's rights, labor legislation, taxation, governmental economy, agriculture and the tariff.

Campbell was optimistic concerning the outcome of the November election and referred to Judge Horner as "the next Governor of Illinois. In times of national stress, he said, 'the people have always turned to the Democratic party for relief.' He cited the election of Andrew Jackson, Grover Cleveland and Woodrow Wilson to substantiate his statement.

For Dry Law Repeal
He asserted that the Democratic party will continue to insist on repeal or modification of the 18th amendment, holding that national control of the prohibition question is contrary to the doctrine of state's rights.

Speaking of the present economic situation, Campbell said that the country is "in a deplorable condition." He asserted that all the blame for conditions cannot be laid at the feet of the Republican party but added that the Republicans are "responsible for a considerable part of it."

Mr. Campbell answered Republican charges that the Democratic party did not have within its ranks men capable of leadership in this time of stress and trouble. He pointed to "the great and lovable Governor of New York," Franklin D. Roosevelt, Governor Albert Ritchie of Maryland, former Governor Alfred E. Smith of New York and James Hamilton Lewis.

"Our party believes in fairness to labor. These citizens are entitled to protection from the government in all of their lawful rights and in the attainment of their worthy and proper aspirations and ideals."

"The Democratic party is in favor of a drastic reduction of taxes and a proper distribution among the taxpayers so that real estate will not as it now does, bear more than eighty per cent of the whole burden of taxes."

"Our party believes in fairness to labor. These citizens are entitled to protection from the government in all of their lawful rights and in the attainment of their worthy and proper aspirations and ideals."

Judge Horner said that in expressing confidence of a Democratic victory in November it was not due to conceit on his own part but that "events have so shaped themselves that to assume otherwise would be foolish."

Small's Former Opponents Give Him Full Support

Springfield, Ill., April 22—(AP)—Col. Frank L. Smith of Dwight was named Temporary Chairman of the Republican state convention here today. Franklin Stranski of Savanna was elected Temporary Secretary.

Smith was campaign manager for former Governor Len Small during the primary and the other factions within the party agreed today that the victorious candidate should take over management of the convention.

Small attended the convention but made no address. The convention recessed until June, subject to the call of Temporary Chairman Smith. At the June meeting, delegates and alternate delegates to the Republican national convention will be selected.

Drafting of a platform and the nomination of Trustees for the University of Illinois may be delayed until September, the Small forces said.

Former Governor Small spent the day in what he termed his "home coming to Springfield." Close friends of both Oscar E. Carlstrom and Omer N. Custer, Small's principal opponents in the primary election, brought him the news that the defeated candidates would give him their wholehearted support.

With the former Governor were former Mayor William H. Thompson of Chicago; John E. Northrup, candidate for Attorney General; C. Wayland Brooks, candidate for State Treasurer; Col. A. E. Ingles, his son-in-law; and Leslie Small, his son.

"I am certain of victory for myself and a firmly united Republican state and believe personally that our slogan 'back to prosperity' is entirely in order," Small said.

Small planned to return to his home in Kankakee late today and then to rejoin Thompson and his other associates tomorrow for a "harmony cruise" down the Illinois river.

LINDY RETURNS FROM MYSTERY TRIP IN NIGHT

No Announcement Is Made of Whereabouts For Two Days

Hopewell, N. J., April 22—(AP)—Back from a mysterious trip, Col. Charles A. Lindbergh conferred early today with persons helping him in his attempt to get his kidnapped son back.

The Flying Colonel, absent two days during which he apparently tried to establish contact with the kidnappers, drove into his Saurland Hill estate about midnight.

Immediately lights shone from many windows in the house and activity was apparent. An automobile owned by Edmund Bruce of Elmira, friend of John H. Curtis of Norfolk, drove into the estate.

Curtis, one of three Norfolk intermediaries assisting Lindbergh, has conferred frequently with the flier. A man traveling under the name "H. Pearson," but believed to be Dean H. Dobson-Peacock, colleague of Curtis, arrived last night at Newark airport by plane from Washington.

He departed from the airport with the announced intention of "losing" himself in New York so that he could attempt to again contact with the kidnappers.

There was no announcement as to the purpose or destination of the trip that Col. Lindbergh recently made.

Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr., was born 22 months ago today. He was kidnapped on March 1, and so far as the world knows, his whereabouts are as deep a mystery now as they were then.

PEORIA SUSPECT IN ROAD KILLING NOT IDENTIFIED

Is Released Today When Man from Prairieville Looked Him Over

Peoria, Ill., Apr. 22—(AP)—Cale Sherwood, held as a suspect in the slaying of Angelo Torallo, Wisconsin bootlegger, was released today after questioning by Sheriff Frank Murray of Ogle County.

Sheriff Frank Murray of Oregon State Highway Officer Frank Tyne of this city, and William Wechsler of Prairieville, went to Peoria this morning to investigate the report that a suspect held by the police of that city, was implicated in the slaying of Angelo Torallo of Kenosha, Wis., on the Black Hawk trail north of Oregon Tuesday evening. The suspect, Cale Sherwood, was taken into custody Wednesday evening when a telephone call informed the police that he had told of having been implicated in a killing north of Oregon Tuesday evening. He was released about noon yesterday when he was later taken in custody at the request of the Ogle county sheriff.

Sheriff Murray spent yesterday afternoon in Dixon with State Officer Via Westendorff of Oregon, in gathering information pertaining to the presence of the killer's car in this city and in the vicinity of Prairieville Tuesday afternoon. An excellent description of the three occupants of the supposed gang was obtained.

Evidence Of Battle
That the occupants of the two cars engaged in a running gun battle was the evidence obtained in the piecing together of the bits of shattered windshield by Sheriff Murray yesterday. Two bullet holes in the windshield of the killer's car and three discharged shells from the victim's 45 automatic pistol, led to this belief. That two of the bullets took effect as the cars sped side by side along the highway, a third missing its mark, was the final supposition of the Ogle county officers. A finger print expert was to examine the broken windshield.

It also developed late yesterday that a small strain which had been concealed underneath the hood of Torallo's Buick coupe, had been removed while the car was held in an Oregon garage. This led the Ogle county authorities to believe that there was possibility that the coupe might have been used in hijacking activities in liquor running circles, which would furnish a very plausible motive for the killing.

SAYS AVIATRIX HAD NO PART IN FIANCE'S DEATH
However, Mrs. Jessie Keith-Miller Is Not Released

Miami, Fla., April 22—(AP)—Mrs. Jessie M. Keith-Miller, Australian flier, and Captain W. N. Lancaster, her partner in flying adventures of the past five years, remained incommunicado in prison today while officers sought to determine whether Haden Clarke, 31, her fiancé, committed suicide or was slain at her home yesterday.

A romance between Mrs. Keith-Miller and Clarke had developed as he helped her prepare her life story for publication.

State's Attorney H. Vernon Hawthorne expressed conviction she is innocent but he continued to hold her in jail as he questioned Lancaster.

In a brief statement today, Hawthorne said questioning of Lancaster, who slept in a room with Clarke, disproved several points in the case which had pointed to murder. He continued the investigation in an attempt to clear up further points which he said prevented an immediate acceptance of a suicide theory.

"While many things would substantiate a theory of suicide," Hawthorne said, "there are a number of facts which, taken either separately or together, hinder the final acceptance of that theory."

Mrs. Keith-Miller was released from jail under guard last night to attend private funeral services for Clarke.

Clarke was fatally wounded in his bed a few hours after he and Mrs. Keith-Miller told Lancaster of their plans to be married. The announcement was made, the fliers said, in Mrs. Keith-Miller's home in an exclusive residential section here.

SAILING HOME
DEEP blue sunlit ocean
Reflects a cloudless dome
The smiles of friends are our parting gifts
And our hearts are turned towards home.

A heaving mass of waters,
A mist of rain and foam
But a happy song sings in our hearts
For the ship is sailing home.

Wild black clouds in the evening,
A rising wind and sea;
But a new moon looks serenely
down,
And a star shines on the lee.

Shutters over the portholes
The wind roars all night long;
But our thoughts are home with waiting friends,
And loving hearts are strong.

Hurricane, waves like mountains,
The ship hove to all day;
This is a time to strengthen our faith,
To watch and work and pray.

Blue-black and white-flecked billows,
A hail storm o'er the foam;
But the sun breaks through the clouds disperse,
And the ship is sailing home.

Pale jade, and blue and purple
In curves of breaking foam,
The wild white horses with sweeping manes
Are galloping, galloping home.

A seagull, strong and fearless,
Swoops low across the foam,
A flight of birds keep close to the ship,
Are they, too, journeying home?

Land at last, and in sunshine
Calmly to port we come,
We gathered rich gifts and now rejoice
In bringing them safely home.

Gluck, Singer, Sanctions No Hire

New York, April 22 — (AP) — Alva Gluck, former Metropolitan Opera singer and the wife of Erwin Zimbalist, violinist, today criticized mothers who hire people to bring their children up.

"A woman doesn't have to be a psychologist to be a good mother, she merely has to give some of herself to her children," said Miss Gluck, who is one of the speakers on the National Child Health Day program, sponsored by the American Child Health Association.

This slender Rumanian, who has entranced audiences in various parts of the world, has had time to raise three children and manage several homes. She is a grandmother, too.

"I think I am a rotten mother and a rotten housekeeper, but my conscience keeps spurring me along," she said.

Maria Virginia, 16, and Erwin, Jr., 13, both love music, but they have to be "policed" by their mother before they will practice. Mrs. Marcia Davenport, the elder daughter, is mother of a seven year old girl, and an author.

At New Hartford, Conn., the violinist and his wife have a home where the family spends May and September.

Marie Dressler, 60, Laughs at Old Age

Hollywood — (AP) — It's a foolish woman who folds up her hands at 50 with the idea that "life is over" and it's a foolish one, too, who tries to hide her age behind flapping paint and gown.

So believes Marie Dressler, film star, who is past 60—and proud of it.

"I don't know anything that is much more pitiful, even tragic, than the middle-aged woman who slumps back under the 'weight' of her perhaps 50 years," Miss Dressler says with conviction.

"They are such fools. As soon as their families have grown and their hair turns gray they quit."

Miss Dressler doesn't believe in quitting, or even in being tired more than absolutely necessary. Despite clouds and rain that darkened the day, she seemed to be especially young and gay during this conversation about her "un-ageing age."

"Why if those middle-aged ladies just knew it," she said, "life is just beginning for them. Finally their responsibilities are over. They can quit sacrificing for their children. They can live for themselves. I feel younger today than I did at 25. I didn't really begin to live until I was 50."

Years ago Miss Dressler was a star on the stage, quite a famous one, too. With advancing years she lost much of her popularity, and then began her race with age, her determination not to let the public forget her.

She kept on working although she reached and even passed middle-age during her "comeback" trials. She never thought of quitting because of age—because "age is a state of mind."

"I wish I could stand on the houseposts and shout to all women, 'Don't dread middle age. Look forward to it instead. It's the best part of life,'" she said, and she meant it.

"Youth doesn't depend on outside appearance. It comes from within. I may look a well-preserved 60 but inside me I know I'm just approaching my twentieth birthday."

"And another thing, I'd like to say a word or two about this trying to look young business. And there's no fool like an old fool, and the silliest thing in the world is a middle-aged woman trying to look and dress and act like a flapper."

G. A. R. Meeting Enjoyed Monday P. M.

Dixon Circle No. 73, Ladies of the Grand Army of the Republic, held a very interesting meeting Monday evening in G. A. R. hall, April 18.

All officers were present, together with a very good attendance of members. Two charter members and Comrade Coltrane were present.

The Relief committee reported most favorably, and the Sunshine committee gave a splendid report of their work. Several members reported it will be taken care of by the Sunshine committee.

The business meeting was cut short in order to receive a committee from the Horace R. Orr Post No. 540, Veterans of Foreign Wars who were in waiting.

Commander Oliver Portner was introduced as well as the other members of his staff. Major Sam Cushing, judge advocate, delivered a stirring address. Several selections of popular songs were rendered by Mr. Barton, one of the staff.

A set of historical documents, The Declaration of Independence, The Constitution of the United States, Lincoln's Gettysburg address, and the Brixley letter.

Nine books on Americanism, the works of several great American patriots. A most cherished volume was also presented by Mr. Wilson. The patriotic instructor, Agnes Barkley, accepted this gift in behalf of the Ladies of the Grand Army and the president, Mrs. Strube, thanked the Horace Orr Post for this valuable gift.

Mrs. Barkley read a splendid paper on "Grand Army Day." The Circle sang the Birthday Song commemorating the many birthdays in this month, and the April committee served refreshments.

After a social hour this meeting closed to meet again Monday afternoon, May 2.

Dixon Circle No. 73, Ladies of the Grand Army, have completed this week the presenting of one dozen manuals on the Origin and History of Our Flag to the grade schools of our city and several rural schools. The work is a welcome addition to each school's library.

Want To Educate Their Children

Vineland, N. J. April 22 — (AP) — The state of New Jersey is going to court in an effort to compel four flaxen-haired children, who live in a barn behind a high board fence of rainbow hues, to attend public school.

Under penalty of fine or imprisonment it will ask their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur J. Smart, to prove to a Cumberland county judge their contention that they can educate the children better than public school teachers.

When the Smarts refused to send their children to school the State Board of Education, arranged for the Landis township board to give them an oral examination of their ability as teachers and indicated that if they could pass the examination the compulsory education law would not be invoked against them.

The Smarts failed to attend the hearing, set for last night. Instead they notified the officials to go ahead and "act" and the authorities announced they would.

Smart has appealed to President Hoover and Governor A. Harry Moore to uphold him in his "constitutional rights."

Mrs. Smart, a New York bookstore clerk before her marriage, says she had made a comprehensive study of child psychology and education.

The children are Arthur Melville, 9, Elizabeth, 7, Mary, 3, and Alfred, 2.

AN INCENTIVE TO JOIN AND RENEW MEMBERSHIP—All new members paying their dues for next year in the Dixon Civic Music Assn., before Monday night will be guests of the Civic Music Assn., for the concert by Bonelli Monday night. And all old members renewing their memberships and paying in full by Monday night, may take a guest with them to Monday's concert by Bonelli.

Pageant by Young People Pleasing

The pageant presented last evening at the Christian Church by the Blues of the Young People's Conference was very pleasing. This is the second time this pageant has been given with the following cast:

Evangelist..... Alberta Peterson
1st Disciple..... Lucille Stauffer
2nd Disciple..... Ada Glesner
3rd Disciple..... Louella Bowser
4th Disciple..... Catherine Conbar
5th Disciple..... Lucia Morris
6th Disciple.....

A quartet composed of Mila Wahneke, Mildred Hartman, Elizabeth Ford, and Leona Ott and accompanied by Lois Fellows at the organ gave the musical interludes.

The object of the play was to show the real place of the cross at the time of the lower world, the worship in itself or to be a show of but as the Lord has commanded, "If any man will come after Me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross, and follow Me."

The service tonight will be in charge of Mrs. Hay Harris and Mrs. Grady Cantrell. Mr. Choate, director, urges all to be present and not to miss the message Mrs. Harris has.

The Blues are still leading in the contest—Reds, 543,225 points; the Blues 751,770 points. Only a few more days to go so they must count if you want to beat the Blues.

Don't forget the time—6:45 P. M. at the Christian church. There will be no meeting on Saturday.

Delightful Concert By Tomford Harris Last Evening

Tomford Harris, gave a concert at the St. Paul's Lutheran church last evening, sponsored by the members of the Philharmonic Society, which proved to be a genuine delight to the appreciative audience gathered to hear him. He is one of the most brilliant pianists ever appearing in Dixon. He is an artist young in years but ripe in talent. His program was a varied one, large in scope and versatility. He has excellent brilliant execution, and fine technique. His concert was most satisfying and his audience was delighted. It is hoped that this young man will visit Dixon again in concert and should he do so it would be difficult to find room for all who would desire to hear him. The applause accorded Mr. Harris was enthusiastic.

After the concert Mr. and Mrs. Dwight Chapman entertained at an informal reception honoring Mr. Harris, and he proved himself a charming person to meet, and many friends during his stay here, both professionally and socially.

BEAUTY BATHS
If it's true that "beauty is only skin deep," then it's mighty important that you take care of that skin!

And nothing, of course, will start it on the highway to beauty more surely than the bath.

A bath may be all things to all women—a stimulant, a rest, a laxation. And though you may take it to induce a sense of well-being and health, don't forget that it is equally efficacious as a beauty treatment.

And as the best beauty treatment of all, I recommend the cold shower. Now, I know that a few years back cold showers were so much the vogue that a person almost was ashamed to admit even stepping into water that was the least bit tepid, and since then there has been a reaction to cold showers on the part of those who hold them to be too severe for the average system. Well, your doctor is the best judge of whether icy waters "agree" with you. If he approves, use the cold shower as a boon to beauty.

Step out of bed, take a little exercise to stir the sluggish circulation, and then—duck between the shower-curtains! If you have no shower, fill the tub with cold water the night before and then—courage! step into it early in the morning.

The brisk feeling that cold water will give you cannot be attained in the best beauty emporium on the globe.

However, don't mistake the cold shower for a bath that has cleanliness as its goal. Don't forsake the warm water that is kind to the soap. First, take a hot rub the night before. Second, have a hot shower with soap and brush before turning on the cold shower in the morning.

Again, if it's a tub bath and not a shower that you take, let cold water follow hot water into your tub and enjoy the benefits of a cold rinse.

Clear eyes, snap and nerve, a lift to your step, a new animation about the whole of you—these are the beautiful things that the bath will do for you.

HOOVER'S OFFER.

President Hoover's offer to waive his constitutional right against a salary cut and become a dollar a year man indicates that he is thoroughly in earnest about the business of reducing government expenditures. It does not however, represent anything very helpful in the way of a definite, workable plan.

In a government budget that runs in excess of four billions a year, a saving of $74,999 is not very large. Furthermore, the point of the whole matter is that something better than a simple reduction in salaries is needed. Few government employes can afford to give up their salaries entirely; but even if they took the heaviest reductions they could endure, the government's financial problem would still remain.

The times call for an extensive, logical program of retrenchment. Cutting the president's salary is not exactly the best way to begin.

BARK HEARD ROUND THE WORLD.

Among the things we would like to see in the papers, but never shall, is an interview with Short, a dog owned by a radio engineer in Schenectady, N. Y.

Short, as you may remember noticing, happened into his master's laboratory the other day while they were testing a round-the-world radio circuit. Short barked, and his bark went whizzing around the world and emerged from a nearby loudspeaker, a fraction of a second later, unimpaired.

Thinking that he was being mocked, or something, Short barked again, and again the bark went around the globe and came back at him. In fact, it all lasted quite a while; and some enterprising reporter ought to find out about the mental and emotional reactions of this, the first dog to hear his own voice after it had traveled 25,000 miles through empty air.

WHERE THE HAZARDS LIE.

The accident to Captain Hawks emphasizes one of the most peculiar aspects of modern aviation—the fact that the moments of greatest danger usually come, not when a plane is high in the air, but when it is just leaving or just reaching the solid earth.

Too much can happen in a fraction of a second, at such times. When things go wrong while the plane is in flight, the pilot has time to take action to meet the emergency; all else failing, he can take to his parachute. But when an emergency develops during the takeoff or the landing there is nothing to do but cut the switch and breathe a prayer—if he has time.

The next great advance in aviation safety will probably come in some way of making the beginning and the ending of a flight less hazardous.

STRANGE JUSTICE.

The strange way in which the machinery of justice occasionally works was never better exemplified than in the recent trial of Dan Nevins for murder in a New York court.

While the jury was deliberating, Nevins decided that the shadow of the electric chair was rather chilling. So he arranged to plead guilty to a charge of manslaughter and to accept a sentence of five to ten years in prison.

Meanwhile the jury, all unknowing, reached its verdict—and found him not guilty! The verdict, because of his new plea, was not accepted.

Among other things, one would like to know Nevins' reaction when he found this out. It would also be interesting to know how the jurors felt when they learned that the man they had acquitted had confessed his guilt.

AN EVIL OF MILD WINTER.

America's farmers are apt to have good cause, during the coming summer, to lament the fact that the past winter was unusually mild, according to a survey recently made by the Department of Agriculture's Bureau of Entomology.

The mild winter, it seems, left insect eggs and hibernating pupae in an unusually favorable position to develop. As a result, such agricultural pests as grasshoppers, codling moths, sugarcane borers, cabbage worms and cutworm moths can be expected to be extremely abundant this year.

It's very nice to have a winter in which the weather is appreciably more pleasant than it is supposed to be. Evidently, though, we're bound to make up for it later on.

Work for any candidate of any party pledged for repeal (of the 18th amendment) and against any candidate who opposes it.—Howard Lee McBain, professor of law, Columbia University.

Conditions in England are splendid. Construction has been started on more plants in the last three months than in the previous three years.—Adrian D. Joyce, president, Glidden Co.

Hungry men are an emergency and we may have to depart from our cherished theories of normal financing to meet it.—Governor George White of Ohio.

REAL DIAMONDS? SURE—HE MADE 'EM HIMSELF

THE STORY OF A MODERN ALCHEMIST

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE.)

As Scouty disappeared from sight, wee Windy said, "I'm filled with fright. We never should have let him go into that house alone."

"If anything should happen to him now, we'd have to rescue him somehow. Hey, listen very closely. I just thought I heard a groan."

"Ha, ha, ha," laughed Copy. "You are all wrong. You see, the wind is getting strong and what you heard was just a squeak that came from yonder trees."

"Two great big branches rub up there, and send a strange noise through the air. Just keep your nerve and don't get so excited."

Inside the house brave Scouty dropped down to the floor and then he stopped and shouted, "Hi, there, Duncy! If you are here, lad answer me."

And then, the next thing that he knew, a voice replied, "Hurrah for you!" And Duncy ran into the room, as happy as could be.

"I knew you'd find me. This is great! And listen, I can hardly wait to tell you of some skinny men who brought me to this place."

"They caught me, and I made no fuss. The truth is, I was curious to find out what they wanted. Gee, I'm glad you lads gave chase."

"I guess those men were very scared of you and thought the best thing they could do was to put you in this crazy house," said Scouty with a smile.

"Let's go outside. Friend Windy is there, with Copy, in the open air. No doubt they're getting very anxious. They have been waiting quite a while."

It wasn't long till everyone decided they would have some fun. Said Scouty, "all those skinny men are near at hand, I know."

"Wait here, and I will bring one back." They shortly heard his lasso crack. Then they saw brave Scouty, with a skinny man in tow.

The Skinnies furnish some fun in the next story.

Mooney, Denied Pardon, Fights On

GOV. ROLPH OF CALIFORNIA HAS DENIED HIS PLEA

He Says Investigation Of Advisors Convinces Him Of Guilt

Sacramento, Calif., Apr. 22.—(AP)—As supporters of Tom Mooney gave notice his account with justice was not yet closed, filing clerks here shut the covers of another chapter of the convicted dynamiter's struggle for freedom—the refusal of Governor James Rolph, Jr. to grant a pardon.

The Governor of California—the fourth before whom the Mooney case has been brought—declared in a 700-word decision announced at the state Capitol yesterday he was convinced Mooney and Warren K. Billings, convicted accomplice, were guilty.

Mooney and his supporters were confident in their predictions the fight would go on.

Fremont Older, San Francisco newspaper editor, said: "the case is no more settled by Governor Rolph's action than it was before he made it."

Mooney himself, in a statement released by the Moulders Defense Committee over his name, declared the struggle had gained added significance, with the assertion:

"This makes me the outstanding figure in the world's labor movement and a symbol of the struggle of labor for its rights."

Advisors' Report

The Governor's decision was based on a report given him by legal advisors appointed last December after consideration of the case had been urged by a group of attorneys led by Mayor James J. Walker of New York.

After reviewing Mooney's efforts for freedom, since his original death sentence was commuted by Governor William D. Stephens to life in prison, the decision said the investigation included study of all available documents and information.

Records of Billings' application before the state Supreme Court for a pardon recommendation also were considered, Governor Rolph said.

He declared the problems were considered "with open minds, in a spirit of absolute fairness x x x," and concluded:

"These facts, taken in conjunction with all of the other matters above mentioned x x x have convinced us that Thomas J. Mooney was guilty of the offense charged against him; that he was justly convicted by the jury before whom he was tried; and that the application made by him for the pardon should be denied."

The "offense charged" was the bombing at a San Francisco street corner, during the 1916 Preparedness Day parade, which killed ten persons and injured 40.

Rolph Led Marchers

Governor Rolph himself, then Mayor of San Francisco, led the line of marchers as the blast roared out.

Details of the crime and investigation were left to a 125-page report submitted by the Governor's chief advisor, Matt J. Sullivan, former California Supreme Court Justice. The lengthy report also took opportunity to reply to those who have criticized the conviction of Mooney and Billings. It said:

"United States Senators and members of the House of Representatives, Governors of several states and even state legislatures have been influenced by the poisonous propaganda."

Major Walker's plea at the hearing in San Francisco last December was referred to as "eloquence misapplied."

The report denied Mooney and Billings were "representative of labor" and also declared the alleged propaganda was being supported by contributions which it estimated "in excess of one million and a quarter dollars."

His hope of freedom shattered, Mooney returned to his duties as "vegetable man" in the San Quentin prison kitchen. His personal remarks on the decision, he explained, were limited by prison restrictions.

At Folsom prison, Billings, also serving a life sentence, declared Governor Rolph's decision lacked "courage."

The Moulders Defense Committee statement declared the decision was based on "fear and prejudice." It reiterated a charge the conviction was secured by perjured testimony.

15 YEARS FIGHTING

San Francisco, April 21.—(AP)—The murder conviction of Tom Mooney and Warren K. Billings for the bombing of the San Francisco Preparedness Day parade of 1916 started a fight that in fifteen years has echoed in far corners of the earth.

Charges of Mooney and Billings that they had been "framed" by big business interests, because of their labor union activities soon brought labor and radical elements to their aid. The movement then grew to international proportions.

President Woodrow Wilson and other high officers added their voices to the demand for executive clemency for Mooney and Billings.

The wartime president's pleading caused Governor William D. Stephens of California to commute his sentence from death to life imprisonment.

Trial judge jurors, lesser prosecuting officials, private citizens and organized groups sought vainly for the state to give Mooney another chance to vindicate himself by trial or to persuade three governors to grant further executive clemency.

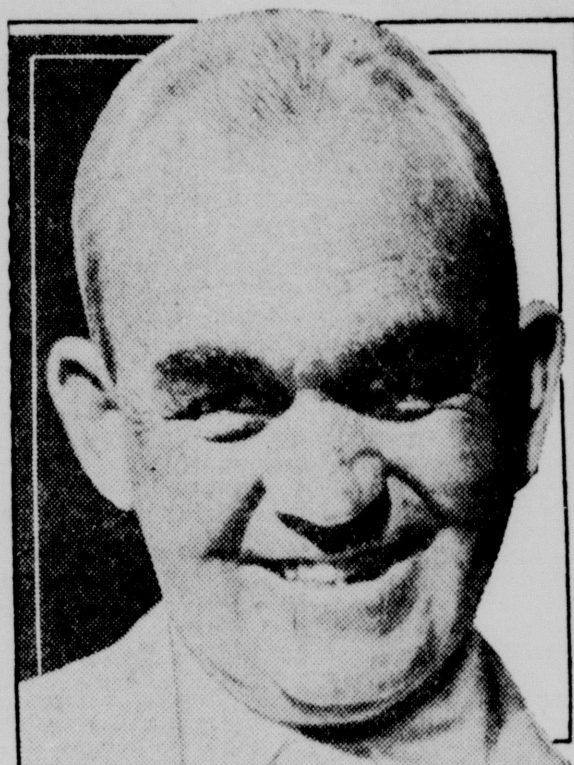

Last December Mayor James J. Walker of New York joined Frank P. Walsh, Mooney's attorney and Aaron Sapiro, another lawyer, in Chapters in the life of Tom Mooney, America's most famous convict, and his long battle for freedom are pictured above by Staff Artist Art Krenz. Arrested and charged with the bomb explosion that killed 10 persons during San Francisco Preparedness parade in the pre-war days of 1916, Mooney was found guilty and sentenced to death by California court, but this was commuted to life imprisonment when President Wilson interceded with California's governor. Mooney has made repeated pleas for a full pardon, based on new evidence tending to show that he was falsely accused of the blast.

WHEN HE WENT TO PRISON—This old picture shows Tom Mooney as he appeared when he was arrested and imprisoned in 1916 for San Francisco's Preparedness Day bomb explosion on July 22 of that year.

a cross continental journey to San Francisco where Walker and Walsh pleaded in a public hearing before Governor James Rolph, Jr., to grant Mooney a pardon.

Some sections of the press accused Mayor Walker of being very "impudent" and of having ulterior motives in leaving his own city, where two investigations of his administration were in progress, and coming here to take a hand in the case. Walker paid little attention to the criticism.

Ten Killed, 40 Hurt

Ten persons were killed and 40 injured in the Preparedness Day parade explosion. At the time San Francisco was the scene of industrial unrest and arguments over preparedness against war.

Mooney, then 34, and Billings, then 22, were almost immediately suspected by the police because of their records as labor agitators and "direct actions."

The bomb had been left in a suit case on a lower market street curb to be set off by a time mechanism.

The bomb exploded at about 2:06 P. M. The chief witness against Billings were Mrs. Estelle Smith, a dentist's assistant and four others who testified they saw him, at 721 market street, about 4,000 feet from the scene of the blast, about 1:50 P. M. and John MacDonald, a waiter, who said he saw Mooney and Billings place the suitcase on the curb.

Billings was quickly convicted of murder and sentenced to prison for life.

Before Mooney's trial started the defense learned that the prosecution had in its possession photographs taken by parade spectators showing Mr. and Mrs. Mooney on the roof of the Elgers building, 925 Market Street, more than a mile from the bombing. In the photographs were street clocks pointing to 1:50, 2:02 and 2:07 o'clock.

Changed Testimony?

In the Mooney trial MacDonald's defense contended, change his testimony because of the close photographs and said he saw Billings and Mooney at the scene at about 1:40 P. M.

The prosecution also brought in a surprise witness, Frank C. Oxman of Durkee, Oregon, who testified he saw Mr. and Mrs. Mooney, Billings and Israel Weinberg, a jitney bus driver, near the bombing scene a few minutes before the blast and that Billings had deposited a suitcase on the sidewalk.

Mooney was convicted and sentenced to die. The defense unearthed information indicating Oxman had testified falsely—that he was 90 miles from the blast scene at the time he said he saw Mooney and Billings. Oxman was indicted for perjury, but was acquitted.

President Wilson's intervention then resulted in commutation of Mooney's sentence. Wilson also appointed a mediation commission which investigated and reported that Oxman's trial had destroyed faith in the Mooney conviction.

The State Supreme Court upheld the conviction, ruling it could not go beyond the record of the immediate case. The United States Supreme court refused to act. Mooney spurned chances for a parole.

The witness MacDonald made an ex-parte affidavit repudiating his testimony. The state Supreme court refused to recommend a pardon for Billings on the mere strength of MacDonald's repudiation. MacDonald was located and the state Supreme Court reopened the Billings Case. The justices heard MacDonald testify his innocence. Again they declined to recommend a pardon, holding MacDonald's story was not sufficient.

built on a foundation so unstable as the evidence upon which Mooney had been convicted, and argued that the pardoning power could not be put to better use than in the Mooney case.

As Governor Rolph postponed announcement of his decision from time to time, Mooney and his supporters criticised the executive, asserting that delay was an indication that an unfavorable decision would be forthcoming.

Calls For End Of Reparations, War Debts

Lloyd George Sees World Crash in Offing, Demands Cancellation

When the World War came to a close, David Lloyd-George was breathing forth fire and smoke at a prodigious rate. The Kaiser was to be hanged, the Germans were to pay through the nose, and the victors were soon to find the world made comfortable and prosperous for them.

In that frame of mind he went to help shape the Versailles treaty, crying that Germany must pay for war damages to the very limit of her ability. It is to his credit that he never deluded himself about what that limit might be as grossly as most of his colleagues did; but he helped, nevertheless, to produce the atmosphere in which the sky-high reparations totals were fixed.

Ever since then he has been cooling off; and now, in a little book entitled "The Truth About Reparations and War Debts," he announces flatly that the world depression will not have a chance to end until reparations are canceled.

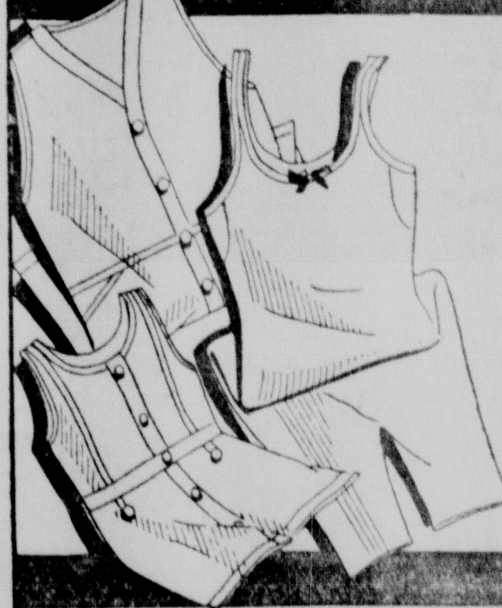

Nor is that all. If reparations are to be canceled, he says, the war debts must be canceled too; and the nations of the world must lower their tariff barriers and give a free play to international commerce.

He makes out an excellent case for his argument. Reparations, he says, and consequently war debts, have been paid so far on borrowed money—money borrowed from the United States. They cannot be paid that way any longer. But to let Germany's export trade rise to a point at which they would be paid in actual cash would mean ruin for trade and industry in all the creditor nations. Hence—cancellation is the only way of avoiding a crash of the existing economic order.

DYKES SAYS ALL SIGNS POINT TO ATHLETICS AGAIN

Mack's Third Baseman Admits, However, Yanks Are Bad

New York, April 22.—(AP)—Depression all along the nation worried front may have the nation worried but to Jimmy Dykes it provided one big reason why the Athletics will triumph again in the American League and set a new record with four straight pennants. "It goes like this," reasons the peppery third baseman of Connie Mack's team, "times are so hard the boys can't afford to fail. It isn't any longer a question of temperament, over-confidence, it's a matter of getting in there and playing your head off, for that important world series money."

Jimmy is certain Philadelphia will float another pennant from the flag pole in Shibe Park, but the way, he admits, will be long and hard.

Yanks Are Tough

"Those Yanks — boy are they tough. The Babe hits and Lou Gehrig hits and Sam Rice hits. If they ever get some more pitching to go with that Lefty Gomez, Ruffing, Pennick and Pip Grimes."

"Somehow, I can't figure Washington quite so dangerous. Maybe their pitching will hold up and fool us, but toward the end of the season they always seem to fold up."

Jimmy, like everyone else on this ball club laughs at the idea that dissension and self-satisfaction will creep into a great outfit and ultimately break it up.

"Why these fellows are all individualists," he insists. "They're all types. They play their ball games. And when one falls another comes through, that's their type of baseball."

Remembers Cards

"I tell you we've got a great gang. Don't forget the Cards taught us something to remember any time we feel too sure of ourselves. They showed us we weren't exactly invincible."

"It's a lot like playing that third base out there. You've got to have plenty of luck with you on the hard ones. Remember that smash Chick Hafey hit in the first game of the world series at Philadelphia last fall?"

"Yeah? I made a dive at something that looked like a baseball. And there it was."

"First thing I thought was 'look what I found.'"

"And everyone said, 'wonderful play!'"

Associated Press Sports Writer

The Boston Braves who couldn't hit the size of their collective hats last season apparently have found a much needed punch in their two prize young infielders, Art Shires and Bill Urbanski.

The Great Shires is proving he is a first baseman, and Urbanski looks like a real star at short.

With the veteran Rabbit Maranville to balance things at second base, they have made a smart combination and have had much to do with planting the Braves out in front of the National League race at this stage. Both Shires and Urbanski were hitting at a 370 clip through yesterday, and they have been getting them where they count.

Fritz Knothe, another rookie, whom Manager Bill McKeechle has installed at third, hasn't shown any indication he will burn up the league at bat, but his fielding has been first rate.

Between them, Shires and Urbanski accounted for four runs to help beat Brooklyn, 6 to 3, before yesterday's opening crowd of 20,000 at Boston. Urbanski drove in a pair, while Shires knocked a run across and scored another. "Red" Worthington knocked in two more with a double.

The day's best individual feat was witnessed at Philadelphia, where Bill Terry of the Giants slapped his fifth home run in three days to tie the major league record and provide a 5 to 4 victory over the Phillies. Fitzsimmons held the Phils to six hits.

The Chicago Cubs collected only four blows off St. Johnson, but two walks, a sacrifice and an error, with Bill Herman's single scored two runs in the eighth and gave them a 3 to 2 win over Cincinnati. The last place St. Louis Cardinals took it on the chin again at Pittsburgh, this time by a score of 7 to 6 in 10 innings. Lloyd Waner's double scored Grace with the deciding run.

Mickey Cochrane's ninth inning home run with the bases loaded was the blow that sank the Yanks 8 to 6, in the American League's main attraction. Al Simmons hit one in the fourth with Cochrane on to further aid the Athletics' cause.

Detroit's surprising Tigers took over first place all by themselves by defeating Cleveland, 5 to 3, while the Washington Senators were dropping a tight one to Boston, 1 to 0. The Tigers made only six hits off Mel Harder, but they bunched four of them in the fifth for three runs.

Oliver's double and McManis' single at first were out in the seventh provided the Red Sox with the run that sank the Senators. It was a tough loss for Alvin Crowder, who allowed only four hits. The losers collected 10 hits off Jack Russell's delivery, but couldn't ring the bell in the pinches.

Shields, Allison In Crucial Match

White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., April 22.—(AP)—More than the right to enter the finals of the annual Mason and Dixon tennis singles championship may hinge today on the outcome of a semifinal round match between Frank Shields of New York and Wilmer Allison, of Austin, Texas.

They may be fighting, as well, for the No. 2 singles berth on the American Davis Cup team which faces Canada at Washington next week.

When the team of four—Allison, Shields, Ellsworth Vines and John Van Ryn—originally was named it was planned to play Shields and Vines in singles and Van Ryn and Allison in doubles.

But Allison already has beaten Vines twice, in the finals of the Tulane Invitation and North and South tournaments. A victory over Shields in the current tournament here might well clinch a singles berth for him.

Vines the No. 1 Davis Cup singles player, also has reached the semi-finals of the Mason and Dixon competition and was matched against Dr. Eugene McCauliff of New York today.

Maybe Milton never wrote baseball. If he had been a baseball writer, that line might have read: "The also serve who only SIT and wait." Anyway, an increasing number of people in the major leagues who were playing regularly not so long ago are seeing the games now from the dugout.

The Big Dale "Ox" Alexander is one of the outstanding examples of reclining servitude. A few days before the present season opened, the Ox seemed to have everything his own way. He had been playing first base for the Tigers for three years, and hitting an average of .332. Then, on the eve of opening day, Detroit purchased young Harry Davis from Toronto.

Harry Davis spent his 27th birthday on the bench, waiting for his chance to go in there and pinch hit.

"Davis looks like a swell fielder," says the Ox. "And I'm satisfied, if he can do better around the base than I could. Of course, it hasn't been proved that he can hit in this league. And it is a long summer."

The age-old bench philosophy is expressed in that last sentence. "It is a long summer." To have made a perfect statement, Alex had only to add, "And you never can tell."

ON YANKES AND A'S — The Yankees offer another case in point—Tony Lazzeri. Throughout the training camp season the newspapermen practically decided that Johnny Saltzgaver, rookie from St. Paul, would supplant Tony. The season started with Tony on the bench, sitting and waiting.

Besides Lazzeri, there are two more fellows on the Yankee bench who, up to this year, served as regulars. One is Joe Sewell, whose work at third during the latter part of the 1931 season, kept pace with the thunder of the Yankee drive down the home stretch. The other is Earl Combs, center fielder of the old roaring pennant winning dynasty. Lyn Lary performs at third and Earl's job has been taken care of, for the time being, by Sam Bryd, a young man who Burgoo King King, Adobe Post, Epidemic, Our Fancy, Cee Tee and Brother Joe were named to contest the issue. Adobe Post and Our Fancy was assigned top weight of 112 pounds with the others carrying 110.

The race has a Derby flavor, none but Derby candidates being named.

Quando, James F. O'Neill's Derby hopeful, was named for the seventh race, a claiming affair over the mile and one sixteenth route.

Kansas Relays Are Under Way Today

Lawrence, Kas. April 22.—(AP)—The call of the tenth annual Kansas relays sounded at the foot of Mount Oread today as a host of contestants gathered for preliminary events in Memorial Stadium of the University of Kansas.

Most of these, some 88, were track and field stars from more than 80 high schools entered in the 28th Kansas interscholastic carnival.

Eight men were here for the first five events of the Missouri Valley A. U. Decathlon. The last five events, of the all-around test are to be completed before the stadium field is given over to athletes of 59 universities and colleges tomorrow.

WALTON LEAGUERS LEARN BENEFITS SKEET SHOOTING

New Sport Has Saved Firearms Industry From Big Slump

Chicago, Apr. 22.—(AP)—Rapid growth of skeet shooting, the new clay-target pastime, put new life into a lagging firearms industry and saved it from a sharp production slump in 1931, manufacturers attending the annual Izaak Walton League convention here said today.

"Though less than six years old, they said, it was one of the fastest growing sports in America, increasing an estimated 100 per cent during last year. They predicted it would again double during 1932."

Skeet is akin to trapshooting but is designed to offer actual conditions of field hunting on the practice range. Seventy million clay targets were used last year, 5,000,000 in skeet and the rest in trap shooting, a drop of 5 per cent from 1930.

"Those 70,000,000 targets meant 70,000,000 shells were fired in both sports," said Earl Fritz of Detroit, representative of a leading power manufacturer. "Skeet's expansion left shell makers with only a 5 per cent decrease in sales for the year. Otherwise it might have been 20 per cent."

Clyde Mitchell of Milwaukee, world's open trapshooting champion, said he fired 600 rounds in skeet last year but broke 25 in a row for a perfect score only once.

William H. Foster of Andover, Mass., who originated skeet, claims it is harder than trapshooting, and less expensive because it is slower. Too, the skeet shooter ordinarily uses a 20 gauge gun, a smaller bore than the trapshooters' 12 gauge. The targets in skeet are projected from opposite traps and the shooters fire at them from eight different stations on a half-circle.

While the sportsmen talked of skeet, 200 delegates to the Walton League convention cheered an announcement of Treasurer Otto C. Doering that despite a 12 per cent decrease in membership the past year, the league's financial condition was "the most favorable" in its history due to strict economy.

JAMIE SEES LIGHT — For 12 years Charlie Jamieson patrolled left field for the Cleveland Indians. Last season a blazing boy of 22 came up from the Cleveland sandlots for a tryout. Jamie helped the kid with fielding pointers. At the plate Joe Vosnick needed no assistance.

One day toward midseason, Jamie was sent from the bench to swing for a pitcher and broke his bat with a handle hit. Returning to the dugout he inspected the shattered stick and sat down with the philosophy:

"Well, I wouldn't have been needing that bat much from now on anyway. Peck."

He looked over at Joe Vosnick with a grin and added:

"Ain't that right, Joe?"

So far it has seemed that Jamie was right.

Motor Boat Pilots Given Clean Bills

New York, April 22.—(AP)—Nine American motorboat pilots stood doubly acquitted today of charges that they had used unfair tactics to bring about the defeat of Charles H. Harrison, British driver, in the final heat of the Col. Green trophy race for outboard boats at Miami Beach, on March 20.

They were cleared yesterday by the American Power Boat Association which had reviewed evidence given by the drivers at a hearing conducted by the Florida Outboard Association at Sanford, Fla., several weeks ago when the first verdict of acquittal was reached.

Announcing the verdict of acquittal, George Townsend, president of the association, said foreign pilot "are going to be assured as square a deal as we expect them to give our pilots who enter foreign events."

Francis H. Thomas of Cleveland, who enlisted in the army on May 9, 1917, and who was not 15 years old until Aug. 7 of that year, is believed to be the youngest veteran of the A. E. F.

SOCIETY NEWS

PEACH BLOSSOMS
John Kearns
Jacksonville, Illinois.

EAR after year our peach tree

Has bloomed beside the door
And every last time seemingly
More lovely than before.

We see, as eyes approach their
More clearly—our grief;
The years that grind away our sight
Leave beauty in relief.

What all for age's sake we miss
Of joys the seasons bring,
We never get too old to kiss
The blushing cheek of Spring.

How best if we this pilgrimage
Between birth and the tomb
Commemorate from stage to stage
With radiant feasts of bloom.

For oh, at last there comes a Spring

When flakes that on our heads
And at our feet fall fluttering
Fall soft above our beds.

And bloom they ever none the less.
We shall not rise to see
The lost eternal loveliness
That hangs upon our tree.

Bonelli Sang at Valentino's Funeral

Richard Bonelli who sings here on next Monday, April 25 at 8 o'clock at the Methodist Church has many keepakes, the gifts of admirers. One of his most prized possessions is a bronze knight, in full armor, carrying a great shield with his coat of arms, a delicately carved and exquisitely wrought example of the sculptor's art which was among the prized possessions of Rudolph Valentino.

Bonelli was in Hollywood when the romantic film actor was buried, and he sang at the funeral rites of Valentino. When the Bach Gounod "Ave Maria" was finished, many in the throng who attended the funeral were softly weeping, so great was the beauty of Bonelli's voice and so solemn the occasion.

Bonelli refused to accept a fee for a thing of that sort, but told Valentino's secretary he would very much appreciate some little keepsake from among the film star's effects. He did not expect anything very much of course, he had mentioned some simple thing, like a paper-cutter or a pocket-knife, or something similar for he knew that the going was to be an auction of Valentino's effects, and he knew also that they were depending upon the sale of a great many valuable things to swell the toll to be turned over to his heirs, after New Year's Day 1927, he received a letter from Valentino's secretary saying that they hoped they had made a selection which would please Bonelli, and in the same mail arrived one of the little statuettes from the collection Valentino had made of Knights in Armor. This collection was famous all over the world, as the film lover had spent a great deal of money on it. It has been claimed that the collection was one of the most complete of its kind in existence. The baritone has started a collection of his own, now, and the statuette of the Knight, less than a foot in height, is the nucleus and central gem of the collection.

Princess Named In Apple Festival

Richmond, Va. April 22.—(UP)—Five additional governors have appointed "Princesses" to represent their respective states in the ninth annual Shenandoah Apple Blossom Festival at Winchester, Va., this spring.

They include Miss Mary Jane Dulaney, Bristol, Tenn., named by Governor Henry H. Horton; Miss Martha Elizabeth Tilley, Raleigh, N. C., choice of Governor O. Max Gardner; Miss Evelyn Bulow, Beresford, S. D., selected by Governor Warren Green; Miss Louisa Robert, Atlanta, Ga., appointed by Governor Richard B. Russell, Jr.; and Miss Sady L. Gardner, Wakefield, R. I., designated by Governor Norman S. Case.

Miss Helen Ames Washington, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Lafayette Washington of Overbrook, Pa., and lineal descendant of a brother of George Washington has accepted the honor of reigning as "Queen Shenandoah IX."

To Be Bride of Eugene Strawn

Announcement of interest to all northern Illinois concerns the engagement and approaching marriage of Miss Phyllis Race of Winnetka, Canada, to Eugene William Strawn, a second lieutenant with the 108th engineers.

The groom-elect is a nephew of Silas Strawn, Chicago attorney, who is well known in this vicinity. He is a commercial artist with the Illinois Central in Chicago, and he and his bride will make their home in that city after a wedding trip through the Canadian Rockies.

'Patriotic' Clothes Decreed for Debs

London.—(AP)—Debs presented at the British court will wear British silks if they want to please the King and Queen.

To every summons to Buckingham Palace the Lord Chamberlain is affixing a printed slip which reads:

"Their Majesties have expressed the wish that ladies attending the court should, as far as possible, wear dresses of British manufacture."

In England, at least, a royal wish expressed with such definiteness is tantamount to a command.

Queen Victoria did something much like this on the wedding day of the late King Edward when she asked all loyal subjects to wear favors made of British silks.

Membership Drive Ends Saturday Eve

The Civic Music Association, founded here some years ago under the leadership of local citizens of prominence, is one of some two hundred fifty such organizations in as many cities of the United States. Membership dues are used to finance a series of local concerts by the most eminent of the world's artists, a plan which places the promotion of music on a democratic basis and establishes it as a civic interest rather than a business. The organization is non-profit making and officers serve without compensation. Dues have been set permanently at five dollars per year so that membership may be within the means of all music lovers.

Increased membership will enable the Civic Music Association to present more music here next season. Artists are not engaged until the membership list has been closed for a given year and the counted. In this way there is never deficit or need of guarantors, and the responsibility of promoting the Civic Music idea rests equally upon all members of the association. During the current week, each member of the Civic Music Association is a committee of one to secure new members.

The present campaign closes Saturday evening at ten o'clock, after which time no more membership ships will be available until next year.

During the next few weeks, more than two hundred cities throughout the United States will conduct similar campaigns to increase their respective Civic Music Associations. The Civic Music movement, originated eleven years ago has now become one of the most firmly rooted institutions in the country. Harvey Firestone, Dr. Charles H. Mayo, Samuel Insull, Goerher Roosevelt, and scores of others prominent in national affairs are listed among the active sponsors of the Civic Music Association.

The aim of Civic Music is to bring civilization within the scope of interest and within the means of the average family. The Civic Music Association is organized on a non-profit basis and officers all serve without compensation, other than the enjoyment of music through civic concerts and the knowledge that they are enabling their fellow citizens to share that enjoyment.

Light Thoughts On Spring Hats

By JEAN PATOU
(Written for NEA Service)

Paris, April 22.—The impatience shown by women to know and be shown the new styles borders on the exaggerated. As early as February, they begin to manifest a vivid interest in summer models and this I consider premature, to say the least. The result is that so soon as a new collection is presented, they rush to renew their wardrobe, regardless of all other considerations.

In their choice of first models, however, all women are obliged to curb their enthusiasm for every novelty, and it is almost, regretfully that they will order clothes suitable to the season's temperature and more or less subdued light.

Light Touch is Spring-like One. A woman invariably demands, though, that her advance spring suit shows a vernal touch. And we must all admit, perhaps somewhat reluctantly, that this touch is one of the greatest charms of early spring clothes.

The merest suggestion of color is sufficient to lend a touch of gaiety to the simplest of models which in many cases, would be inclined to monotony without it. The accessory plays an important part too as contributor to this gay note. It is an acknowledged fact that in advance of the festive and spring-like appearance is considerably enhanced by the right hat and details.

both in medium and coloring is permitted in the choosing of a new spring hat. A white hat, for example, if it is relatively small and relieved by a contrasting ribbon or fantasy trimming, can complete quite successfully a more or less sober ensemble.

In a rather more restrained manner, a dark hat with the merest vivid or light touch will impart to the whole ensemble a vigorous note note providing quite sufficient a fantasy for a simple spring suit. But a tailored, clear-cut suit or ensemble, bereft as it usually is of the softening touch of fur, must absolutely include this relieving note.

Youthfulness in Note of Color. When you have ensembles fashioned of middle-weight fabrics and more or less plain you will find that a striking detail, a vivid fantasy or the introduction of a bold touch of color will impart that sense of spring-like youth and lightness. As in no other category of clothes does the liaison between the hat and the ensemble appear so necessary. A matching color in the trimming very aptly links the hat to the dress.

Too great a color contrast here, if it must be remembered, would only result in a discordant note. The trimming is not forcibly the only point of contact between dress and hat. The same result is achieved if the hat, instead of being in direct contrast, as when white is chosen, is a shade lighter than the darkest color of the ensemble. I have shown for instance a good many light blue hats with navy or grey with dark brown and they seem to have gained the approval of many of my clients.

A Lesson for Home Study — By Ethel

Dutch Brought Us Waffles and Syrup, Crullers and Doughnuts

If women wrote the history books Pieter Stuyvesant and the other Dutchmen would get due credit for more than settling New York, or providing us with some fine sturdy ancestors. These early settlers have endeavored themselves to American housewives for bringing to this country the golden waffle with syrup, the cinnamon-cruller, and the sugar-topped doughnut, which grace our spring tables now that May is nearly here.

Most of us thank the south for the waffle—and certainly the old colored mammas know how to make them—but it is to the Netherlands and England of little old New Amsterdam we owe gratitude for the original recipe, and for the method of popping dough into hot kettles to obtain crispy crullers.

Waffles were most popular with Governor Stuyvesant's subjects on feast days. St. Martin's Day or the Kermis called for a great celebration; "hot booths" were set up along the main street, where the waffles and syrup were dispensed to the burghers who had not entirely filled up on home made "oylkoeks." Even after the Duke of York claimed the village for England, the fame of these delicacies continued to spread throughout the colonies.

Our Easy Methods. The very recipes we use today are adaptations of those of the 17th century. But so much easier! Auntie fairly got smoked out of her house, deep-frying her crullers. Now we use a modern cooking-ut made from corn for the purpose, depending on its high smoking point to keep the fumes from the kitchen. We use the same oil as an ingredient, too, to keep the dainties delicate and greaseless and find it invaluable for oiling the waffle iron.

The secret of good waffles is to have a rich, frothy batter and a very hot iron. The rest of the success depends on the syrup served with them, but certainly, with corn syrup now obtainable in seven or more flavors, that should not be difficult.

The traditional doughnut recipe, like that still preferred by the Dutch who turn out such wonderful "fried cakes" is for the yeast-raised variety, but modern housewives prefer the speedy method.

The newest health knowledge shows us that properly fried foods are good for us—so follow the waffle principle and avoid the deep fryer.

Get Porch Furniture Ready Now

This is an excellent time to get porch furniture ready for its springtime reappearance. Pieces can be examined for needed repairs and enameled to match, or in pleasing contrast. The household bureau of the American washing machine manufacturers points out, also, that remnant lengths of cretonnes and other colorful materials to be used for recovering can be picked up at bargain prices now and even if badly soiled, can have their bright hues quickly restored by a swishing in the home washing machine.

WOMEN BUY MOST ALL OF THE GOLDFISH—

Women buy over 95 per cent of all goldfish sold, according to statistics of the largest mail order house. Incidentally, the space occupied by the goldfish tanks in this house brings the highest return on investment of any equal amount of space in the whole concern.

In the years to come when mattresses of this quality are again selling for forty dollars and more, you'll be glad to have the label remind you that $19.32 is the price you paid.

You have only a short time in which to get this mattress. It may be necessary to take it off the market any day.

GENERAL KEIFER, VETERAN OF TWO WARS, DIED TODAY

Famous Soldier, One of Two Civil War Generals, Summoned

Springfield, O., Apr. 22 — (AP) — One of the last Civil War Generals, J. Warren Keifer 96, died at his home early today of old age.

The only other known living Civil War Major General is Albert Ames of Boston.

Physical injuries suffered when he was a boy were responsible for General Keifer becoming a lawyer when it had been intended that he should succeed his father in the conduct of the family farm in Bethel Township, Clark County, O. The injuries, it was thought, rendered him unfit for the strenuous work of an active agriculturalist, but they proved no bar to an active service of more than four years in the Civil War, a service performed with such gallantry and bravery that won for him promotions from the ranks to the grade of Major General in the Union Army. When he was mustered out of service at the close of the war he had the distinction of being the youngest soldier to hold that rank.

National Figure
For more than 50 years thereafter General Keifer was a figure of national prominence. He was elected a representative in Congress for seven terms, during one of which he was speaker of the House; responded to his country's call for the second time in the war with Spain; and for several years prior to the World War had been an ardent and active advocate of world peace.

General Keifer, an unusually tall man with almost white hair, had a pleasing and attractive personality, and was a commanding figure at public gatherings. A story is told of him that when he first went to Congress he refused to wear evening clothes and maintained his stand against formal attire until he was elected Speaker of the House, when his friends prevailed upon him to change his attitude. He apparently liked the change, and by becoming accustomed to it, for he wore his evening clothes not only at public functions thereafter, but most of the time as well when he appeared upon the street.

Struggling to build up a law practice at Springfield, O., when President Lincoln issued the first call for volunteers for service in the Civil War, General Keifer enlisted April 19, 1861, in the Third Ohio Volunteer Infantry. Eight days later he was commissioned a Major. He participated in the campaigns in West Virginia, Kentucky, Tennessee, Georgia and Alabama and was wounded seriously four times.

Was Badly Wounded
In the Battle of the Wilderness in command of a regiment he was severely wounded in the chest, by a shell fragment and placing the injured member in a sling, continued to lead his men in several fierce engagements. After the battles of Copeckan, Fisher's Hill and Cedar Creek he was made a Brevet Brigadier general, and in recognition of his gallant conduct in the campaign which resulted in the surrender of General Robert E. Lee he was made a Major General.

After the war General Keifer returned to Springfield to resume his law practice and the next year declined a commission as Lieutenant Colonel in the regular army. In the war with Spain, more than 30 years later, he was appointed a Major General of Volunteers and was assigned to command the First Division, Seventh Army Corps, which was camped at Miami, Fla.

Between his two periods of active war service General Keifer entered politics in his native state and was elected in 1867 to the Ohio state Senate for two years. He was first elected to Congress in 1877 and served four consecutive terms, being Speaker of the House in the Forty-seventh Congress, 1881-1883. At the conclusion of the Forty-eight Congress he retired temporarily from politics to devote his time to his law practice, but returned to Congress in 1905 and served three terms. He was defeated for re-election in 1912.

Backed Panama Canal
During his second period in Congress General Keifer interested himself in the Panama Canal and took two trips with Congressional committees to the Canal Zone in connection with work on the canal and in improving health conditions in the district. He also went to the Hawaiian Islands and a report he made to Congress resulted in a port and harbor near Honolulu being fortified and made adaptable for ships of war. He was responsible for the closure rule while he was Speaker.

While it was on the field of battle that General Keifer won his greatest fame he was actively interested in world peace in later years. He officially represented Congress at the International Peace Conference at Brussels in 1910, where he delivered an address, and two years later at Paris was made a life member of the Interparliamentary Peace Conference of the World. Designated as an official representative of the United States to the conference scheduled at Stockholm, August 1914 he was in Berlin when the World War began witnessed the mobilization of the German armies and heard read in the Reichstag the Emperor's proclamation of war. He was one of the committee of 40 that issued the formal call for the Third Peace Conference at The Hague in 1914 which however was not held because of the war.

Born on his father's farm January 30 1836 General Keifer obtained such preliminary education as the country schools of the vicinity afforded. When it was decided to make a lawyer of him he went to Antioch College for a time during the early part of the administration of Horace Mann as president of that institution and then studied law at Springfield for two years. He began practice there in 1858 and always maintained an office in that city.

Besides his law practice and public service General Keifer had been

Volcanoes Of Andes Are Three Groups Of Vents

Washington, D. C.—The Andes of South America, where, for a stretch of 400 miles volcanoes are belching forth lava and ashes and gases, form at all times one of the world's most active volcanic and earthquake areas, according to a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

"This great mountain range," says the bulletin, "is classed by some geographers and geologists as one section of a stupendous 'world ridge' that extends from near Cape Horn up the Pacific coast of the Americas to Alaska, across the Aleutians to Siberia, and down the Asiatic coast to Japan, the Philippines, New Guinea, and New Zealand. The Andes alone constitute the longest mountain range known—4,500 miles in extent. In the range are the earth's highest active volcanoes, some of them 18,000, 19,000, and even 21,000 feet above sea level.

Three Groups Of Vents
"The active vents of the Andes are in three separate groups. The northernmost group extends over Ecuador and a portion of Colombia; the middle group covers southern Peru and extends into northern Chile; and the southern group lies along the Chilean-Argentine border in the latitude of central Chile. It is this latter group that is now in spectacular eruption."

"The Andes form a wall, difficult to scale, between the narrow Pacific coast of South America and the broad reaches of the interior that drains to the Atlantic. At only three points in their long extent are the Andes completely crossed by railways. All three of these lines have their western ends in Chile.

"The northernmost railway runs from Arica to La Paz, Bolivia. Three hundred and fifty miles farther south another line extends from Antofagasta into southern Bolivia, and connects with lines leading southward into northern Argentina.

"The most important railway over the mountains extends from Valparaiso, chief Chilean port, almost due east to Buenos Aires, Argentina.

disturbed, but the business district was almost demolished. So great was the debris in some sections that the city authorities abandoned the idea of its removal, piled it into the streets and laid new concrete over it. Steps leading from the street down to front doors of flanking houses are reminders of the extent of the damage.

"Santiago, the Chilean capital is an inland city, lying among the Andean hills southwest of Valparaiso, and is thus much closer than the latter city to the volcanic outburst. In beauty Santiago ranks second only to Rio de Janeiro in South America.

"Santiago is best viewed from Santa Lucia Hill which rises out of the heart of the city. From there the traveler looks down upon a community of half a million people dwelling for the most part in one-and two-story houses, a city of innumerable domes and spires which join a few skyscrapers of the downtown district.

"Mendoza Province of Argentina which is reported to have been covered by ash, is about the size of Wisconsin and lies against the Chilean border. The eastern portion of the province is arid, sandy level plain but the portion bordering the hills is fed by mountain streams.

"Mendoza City, capital of the province is about 632 miles by rail northwest of Buenos Aires. The district is naturally arid, but irrigation has brought it under cultivation."

Sidelights In News In Capital Of United States

By HERBERT FLUMMER

Washington—Sen. Lynn Frazier of North Dakota has made available to those members of Congress in both House and Senate who must stand for reelection this year something that might prove a valuable campaign document.

The senator has encountered a gentleman around the capital who has been measuring the head of senators and representatives, applying the findings to a formula in an endeavor to determine the relation of their brain weight to their legislative ability.

A total of 89.71 representatives and 18 senators have had their heads measured for length, width and height thus far and their brain weight estimated.

Just who they are is not known. In a series of imposing looking tables which Senator Frazier got permission to print in the Congressional Record the other day, only numbers are used.

However, it is disclosed that the average brain weight of a senator is two ounces more than that of a representative, and that a senator's legislative ability credits average 921 to 238 for a representative.

Technical Process

The method employed to determine the weight of a congressman's brain and thus his possible legislative ability is a highly interesting if technical process.

Suppose for example the length of his head is found to be 201 millimeters (8 inches), the width 132 millimeters (5 inches), and the height 146 millimeters (5 inches). Then your formula is like this:

$(201 - 11) \times (132 - 11) \times (146 - 11) \times .000337$  plus 406.01 equals 1,625 cubic centimeters (.98 cubic inches), the cranial capacity of the congressman. Then multiply this by .95 and you get 1,543 grams (.54 ounces), the weight of the congressman's brain.

World Competition

It is the hope of Senator Frazier's anthropologist or whatever you call a man engaged in this field of research, that Congress will set the example in conducting studies such as these, so that eventually there may be established a comparison between legislatures of different nations.

"As all legislative bodies are competitive," it is pointed out, "success is necessarily connected with merit."

"Also most legislative activities are not arbitrary, but all have certain courses and may follow a law yet unknown which future scientific research may discover, and thus lead to changes in rules of legislative procedure."

NOT OVERTIME—

Rev. Pittman, the tall Nevadan, is nearing the close of almost two decades as a member of the United States Senate.

He points rather proudly to the fact that he has never run for any office except that of United States senator, although he did a turn as prosecuting attorney—the first one in Nome, Alaska—early in this century and was one of the committee which formulated the "consent" form of government for that city.

There are few of his colleagues who will not admit that when it comes to savvy, the Nevada senator has few equals. All seem to like him, call him "Key," enjoy sitting around listening to his stories of high adventure in the great northwest in his younger days.

Thus it was a mild sensation on the floor of the senate the other day when he and McKellar of Tennessee engaged in a flare-up over — of all things — something McKellar charged as a personal affront.

An Argument

The two had been arguing about that question which has vexed so many in this congress—reducing expenditures in the federal government.

The Nevada senator told McKellar, member of the appropriations committee, that his plan for a 10 per cent reduction in all appropriations was not scientific—a plan which McKellar has fought for relentlessly.

"Oh, yes," McKellar replied, "we all believe in cutting expenses in every state, but our own. I did my best to cut out an appropriation the other day for eradication of some unknown bush, but the senator from Nevada would not support me."

Pittman replied something about maybe the senator from Nevada knew more about the bush than the senator from Tennessee.

Forgiveness

McKellar flew into a rage. "I resent that," he shouted. "The senator has been here long enough to know that he shouldn't talk like that. I am surprised."

He turned his back to Pittman, who sought to make an explanation that he meant nothing personal. But McKellar was adamant. He continued to shout at the chair.

"Mr. President, I refuse to yield! I refuse to yield!"

Pittman, smiling and suave, waited until McKellar had cooled off. Then he arose on a point of personal privilege and in his easy way placated McKellar.

Just another indication of how this job of "balancing the budget" is affecting the nerves of even the best of friends.

Shell Tax Bill Becomes Orphan At Senate Query

Washington—Reputation of the cent-a-shell tax bill by two members of the special committee which recommended the shell tax plan as the most feasible method for raising funds to restore the wild duck supply, climaxed the Senate wild-life committee's hearings held on April 4, 5 and 6 to ascertain waterfowl conditions and public sentiment on proposed waterfowl legislation and shooting season regulations.

Quoted by Senator Harry H. Hawes of Connecticut, William C. Adams, chief of the division of game and fish of the New York Conservation Department and chairman of the committee named at the behest of the American Game Association to select a waterfowl financing plan to submit to Congress, said the committee had nothing to do with drafting the bill and did not pass upon it before its introduction in the House. He advised it was drafted in the offices of the U. S. Biological Survey of the Department of Agriculture for the More Game Birds in America Foundation of New York, which sponsored the shell tax plan, and as far as he knew had not been submitted to any other group or organization for approval.

On the second day of the hearing he told the Senate committee that he had not read the bill. After reading it he expressed his opposition to its present form. Major A. Willis Robertson, chairman of inland fisheries and game of Virginia, the only other member of the special committee present, also announced his opposition, making the testimony of the more than 100 witnesses practically unanimous against the bill as it stands. The proposed measure, although still before the House Ways and Means Committee, was investigated by the Senate committee as part of its efforts to clear up the duck situation and help the Secretary of Agriculture and his waterfowl advisory board set the shooting season for next fall.

Seth Gordon, president of the American Game Association, and second witness called by the Senate committee, testified that his organization had not actively opposed the bill, considering itself bound by action of the American Game Conference at New York last December to abide by any ruling of the special committee. He declared, however, that neither he nor the association's board of directors saw the bill before it was introduced. The board agreed on March 22 that it could not sponsor such a measure, he said.

Sentiment expressed at the hearings was overwhelmingly in favor of a $1 Federal license for migratory bird hunters, the plan sponsored by the American Game Association prior to the special committee's decision.

It was agreed that the proposed tax bill would empower the secretary of agriculture to dominate state game policies under threat of withholding a state's share of the tax returns until it should meet the Federal department's requirements, and that other features are equally undesirable. All witnesses agreed that waterfowl shooters should pay to maintain their own sport, and not ask other shooters, who are in the great majority, to bear any part of the expense of waterfowl restoration activities.

Dave Shade Winner on His Own Experience

Chicago, April 22 —(AP)—Dave Shade, veteran of 15 years of ring warfare and more than 400 bouts, still is too smart for most of the younger boxers.

The California ducker and bopper last night edged out a close decision over Jack Kilbourne promising young middleweight from Australia, in ten rounds at White City, and called on all his cunning to do it.

He kept the flashy youngster tied up and scored often enough with a left to the body to gain his margin.

A monthly magazine in the interest of students in Oklahoma's 14 Indian schools will be printed by apprentices in one of the schools.

CLERGY VOTING DRY; ATTORNEYS, PHYSICIANS WET

Majority Of Bankers In Digest's Poll Also Are Moist

The Clergy of the United States are the driest and the Lawyers are the wettest professional groups in the country according to returns of The Literary Digest's special classified Prohibition Polls as published in to-morrow's issue of the magazine.

The Bankers of the nation rank next to the Clergy in their dry sentiment and the Physicians vote practically as wet as the Lawyers, according to the balloting in these supplementary referendums.

In the poll of the Clergymen of the country thirty states are voting dry while sixteen states register wet majorities and two more vote exactly even on the subject.

The District of Columbia Clergy vote more than 4 to 1 for repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment. Stating that the figures from the National Capitol in the 1930 Clergy poll were singled out for special criticism. The Literary Digest calls special attention to the fact that the names and addresses of this group were obtained from the latest denominational year books or the latest Washington city directory and included 797 Clergymen of all denominations.

The Clergy in six states vote more than 4 to 1 for continuance of the Prohibition Amendment and the driest of these, North Carolina, votes more than 7 to 1 dry.

Of the total of 43,606 ballots received in the Clergy Poll 23,924 or 54.86 per cent vote for continuance and 19,684, or 45.14 per cent vote for repeal of prohibition.

In the 1930 Prohibition Poll the Clergy vote was 57.59 per cent for enforcement of prohibition while in the current poll the vote for continuance of prohibition is 54.86 per cent of the total vote.

The poll of the Bankers of the country reveals a sentiment of nearly 2 to 1 wet, although five states show an outright dry majority while the other forty-three states and the District of Columbia vote for repeal. Four states in this group show a sentiment of more than 5 to 1 wet. The Bankers of Nevada vote over 11 to 1 for repeal.

A total of 77,860 ballots were received from the Bankers of which 26,608 or 34.17 per cent, show a sentiment in favor of the continuance of the Eighteenth Amendment, while 51,252, or 65.83 per cent are in favor of repeal of prohibition.

The Bankers' vote of 1/30 was 41.50 per cent for enforcement and the present poll of this financial class shows a decline to 34.17 per cent, of the total vote for continuance of prohibition.

The vote of the nation's physicians in their special poll shows they desire a repeal of prohibition by a majority of over 3 to 1. No state in this group gives a majority in favor of the Eighteenth Amendment.

Kansas is the driest state in the Physician's poll with a percentage of 43.97 in favor of continuance while in the wet column Delaware votes 90.07 per cent for repeal of the law.

The medical fraternity returns a total of 60,229 ballots which are divided 14,700 or 24.52 per cent in favor of prohibition and 45,529 ballots, or 75.48 per cent in favor of repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment.

The comparison between 1930 and 1932 returns in the Physicians vote shows that two years ago they voted 30.34 per cent dry and this year only 24.52 per cent dry.

The Lawyers of the United States also are voting more than 3 to 1 wet and no state in the returns of the poll of this profession shows an outright dry majority. Kansas tops the dry column in this poll with a percentage of 43.62 per cent in favor of continuance while on the other hand the Lawyers of Nevada give a majority of 20 to 1 in favor of repeal of the act.

A total of 52,652 ballots were received from Lawyers in every state in the nation of which 12,736 or 24.23 per cent were dry and 39,916 or 75.77 per cent were wet.

In the 1930 special poll the vote of the Lawyers was 28.85 per cent for enforcement and now this percentage has been reduced to 24.23 per cent, in the present returns.

In the special poll of The Literary Digest subscribers the vote of this group is practically the same in ratio as the returns in the tabulations of the main 20,000,000-ballot Prohibition Poll.

A total of 473,760 ballots were received from Literary Digest subscribers. This vote was divided in 135,813 ballots or 28.67 per cent, in favor of prohibition and 337,947, or 71.33 per cent in favor of repeal of the act.

The vote for Prohibition among Literary Digest subscribers has been reduced from 39.41 per cent in the poll of two years ago to 28.67 per cent in the current referendum.

The Literary Digest states that they have augmented their huge nationwide poll with these five supplementary polls of the Bankers, Clergy, Lawyers, Physicians and their own subscribers because these special classes touch the national life in five vital and different ways.

No returns on the main poll are announced this week, as the current issue of the magazine's tabulations is devoted exclusively to the classified returns which total over 700,000 votes.

The magazine also states that it anticipates closing the balloting of the main poll and issuing final returns next week.

"We interrupt the regular poll report this week," The Literary Digest will state editorially to-morrow, "in the home stretch of the referendum to give without delay the returns of these special polls."

"The special polls are counted separately as a sort of annex to the main poll."

"Looking over the returns we find that dry Bankers outnumber their wet confederates in Alabama, Arkansas, Kansas, North Carolina and Tennessee.

"The Bankers of Kansas are dryer than the Kansans themselves which is shown by the big poll."

"The Bankers of Wyoming and the District of Columbia appear to be 5 to 1 wet."

"A dampish drift in Clergy sentiment is indicated by our special Clergy poll figures."

"Here's a curiosity. The Clergy of North Carolina and Tennessee are respectively 87.29 and 86.34 per cent dry, while those of Kansas are only 64.20 per cent dry."

"Another: The Clergy of Louisiana are 70.42 per cent wet while those of neighboring Mississippi are 80.93 per cent dry."

"Not a single state goes dry in the Lawyer vote. Even Kansas gives 56.38 per cent wet."

"The doctors also vote 3 to 1 wet without a single dry state. They are almost 6 per cent wetter than in 1930."

Refuges Urged To Save Ducks At Senate Quiz

Washington (Special)—Pointed questions put to more than 100 witnesses by the Senate wild-life committee at its hearings on April 4, 5, and 6, held to determine migratory waterfowl conditions and public sentiment in regard to proper hunting regulations and proposed duck restoration plans, drew out of the chaos of conflicting opinions several points of agreement on which the federal wild fowl hunting season next fall will probably be based.

State game commissioners, scientists and heads of state and national sportsmen's organizations urged that chains of inviolate refuges be established on all major flight lanes from Canada to the southern borders of the United States.

Testimony disclosed that: There has been a gradual and serious decrease of ducks during the last 15 years. Destruction of former nesting, resting and feeding areas is agreed upon as a major cause. Atlantic coast states still have an abundance of ducks. So have certain Mississippi Valley areas in the Mississippi Valley. Other sections report a shortage. Authorities believe the abundance of ducks in a few sections is largely due to forced concentration of ducks in suitable areas remaining for them.

A short shooting season of un-form length will be agreeable, even to sportsmen of well-supplied areas, if the states are permitted to set their own time. They prefer at least 60 days of shooting, to be placed by state regulation at any time between October 1 and January 15, as local flight conditions warrant. They desire state regulation of shooting hours, baiting, decoys and all other minor phases of the sport, dictated by local requirements.

A shorter season of heavy shooting is considered more harmful to the birds, and to be destructive of interest in waterfowl restoration. With inadequate law enforcement as at present, it would leave ducks to the mercy of pot-shooters.

Sentiment is almost unanimously against the cent shell tax bill now being proposed in the House Ways and Means Committee, but overwhelmingly in favor of a federal license of $1 for migratory bird hunters as a means of financing federal waterfowl restoration work. This work should emphasize the reclaiming of former waterfowl habitat drained for agricultural purposes, much of it now lying waste.

Chains of inviolate waterfowl refuges, through cooperation of state and federal governments, should be established immediately. New appropriations under the Norbeck-Anderson Act of 1928, which authorized $8,000,000 to be spent on inviolate refuges for migratory birds in ten years, should be obtained from Congress as soon as possible and the program pushed forward. Appropriations are now $800,000 behind schedule.

The two year old, wild-life committee, of which Senator Frederic C. Walcott of Connecticut, 1 the chairman, set out expressly to clear the waterfowl situation and to aid the Secretary of Agriculture and his reorganized migratory bird advisory board in fixing a more popular shooting season for 1932. Confusion, strife and debate sprang into being among sportsmen last year when the Department of Agriculture recognized an emergency shortage of wild ducks and set a definite 30-day short season in every state. Many sections had little shooting.

7. Expenditures by State

There is no complete separation of functions between the state and the minor governmental units, although there is frequently a difference in emphasis. Over a period of years the expenditures of the State of Illinois have not only increased in amount but gone for a wider variety of services.

The sum total of the appropriations of the 30th General Assembly was about 6 1/2 million dollars. The appropriations of 50th General Assembly, 1917-18, were about 50 1/2 million dollars, while those of the succeeding one went to more than 172 1/2 millions. The appropriations of the 56th General Assembly to the appropriations of the 55th totaled about 272 1/2 million dollars.

Of the total appropriations of the 56th General Assembly more than 92 million dollars was for highway construction and maintenance. The retirement of bonds and interest took nearly 28 million dollars, a large part of which arose from the issuance of bonds for highway purposes. It is not difficult to see that the major emphasis of the state is upon highways since between 40 and 50 per cent of the total appropriations were for this item.

The item of appropriation next in importance was for charities, hospital and corrections and the third was for education. The public institutions received an appropriation of about 43 1/2 million dollars while that for education was less than 39 1/2 million. Public institutions are maintained for the insane, deaf, blind and epileptic and penal institutions to care for the delinquent. The appropriations for education are distributed to the public schools of the state, the normal schools and the University of Illinois.

Other items for which appropriations were made were waterway construction, about 10 million dollars; agriculture about 5 1/2 million; military, about 4 1/2 million; legal and judicial, about 4 million; labor and mines, about 2 million; legislative about 1 1/2 million; flood

FARM LEADERS TO ATTEMPT TO PICK PROGRAM

Legislative Planning To Be Determined Next Tuesday

Washington, April 21—(AP)—The outcome of next Tuesday's conference of farm leaders probably will determine if any major legislation for the relief of agriculture will be passed by Congress this session.

Irked by delays, the three national farm organizations—the American Farm Bureau Federation, the Grange and the Farmers Union—insisted on the conference to present their demands. Back of their insistence, a spokesman for one farm organization said today, is the increasing clamor from the farmers themselves for some form of relief.

The conference will be held by the Senate Agriculture committee of which Senator McNary, Republican, Oregon, is chairman. The score or more of farm relief bills, including those affecting the Farm Board, will be considered and an effort will be made to reach an agreement on a program. Among these bills are those embodying the equalization fee, export debenture and the allotment plans for controlling crop surpluses, refinancing of the farm mortgage debt and stabilization of farm prices. Another measure would appropriate $200,000,000 to finance foreign sales of wheat and cotton.

STAMP MAY HONOR PIONEER

Titusville, Pa.—A commemorative stamp issue to honor Colonel Edwin L. Drake, who drilled the first commercial oil well in the world near here, is to be sought by Titusville business and civic leaders. It is proposed to have the post office department issue the memorial stamp on the completion of Drake oil Park, now under construction.

Pleuromonas Jaculans, the world's smallest animal, has a diameter only about one-tenth the diameter of an average human hair. It lives in ditches and pools. If the pool dries up, the tiny animal rolls up into a ball and waits until more water falls or a wind blows it away to another puddle. Pleuromonas belongs to the group of animals known as protozoa, and has existed almost since the dawn of life.

Terns can reach home from great distances over land that is absolutely barren of guiding marks. On Bird Key, where great numbers gather during the nesting season, a tern can pick out her own eggs, or chicks, from many thousands of others that look exactly alike.

UPPER ROOM AT TABERNACLE IS FILLED NIGHTLY

Two Hundred Have Passed Through It During Revivals

There was a ready response again last night to Evangelist Cantrell's invitation at the tabernacle revival. The Upper Room was quickly filled as the choir sang two verses of a familiar hymn. Two hundred have come forward so far in the revival in response to Rev. Cantrell's invitation to pass through the Upper Room.

The evangelist preached the third sermon of his series of four upon the "Power of Pentecost." The concluding sermon will be preached tonight. "Tomorrow night," he announced, "I will show how we may get back to the power of the Holy Spirit. A Pentecostal Power and Blessing will come if we fulfill the conditions. I will also answer the question as to why Jesus said the bootlegger, the gambler and the racketeer is wiser than we church members."

Ray Harris led the great chorus choir in another inspiring praise service. Dick Choate favored the audience with two numbers on the xylophone. Mr. Harris and the choir sang a Negro spiritual "Walkin' in Jerusalem Just Like John." It was enthusiastically received by the great audience.

The only delegation observed last night was the Agogo class of the First Baptist church. A section in the center of the tabernacle was reserved for them. There were over thirty in the delegation.

The young people's conference, which is being led by Dick Coate, put on a pageant at the Christian church last night just preceding the revival service. The auditorium of the church was packed full of enthusiastic young people. They go from the conference to the tabernacle service each evening.

There will be a service as usual Saturday night. The Saturday night crowds have been good throughout the series of meetings thus far. It is expected that tomorrow night's crowd will be larger than usual as many farmers who have been attending up to this week have been quite busy with their work but can attend most conveniently on Saturday evening.

There will be a meeting for men only at the tabernacle Sunday afternoon at 2:30. Rev. Cantrell has announced that he will preach upon "Wine, Women and Gambling." There will be no service on Monday night. The services will resume for the week Tuesday night with another Sunday school night.

"What is the use of my trying to wind-jam God with our prayers, when it doesn't get us anywhere?" inquired the evangelist, as he resumed his discussion of the Power of Pentecost, the theme of four sermons this week. "Tonight," he pursued, "I want to show from a study of the first few chapters of Acts of Apostles what we ought to pray for. The reason so many prayers fall flat is that the wrong things are asked. What did the apostles and early Christians pray for? What were they praying for when Pentecost came? We need to learn from them."

"Our first impression as we read those opening chapters of Acts is that these early disciples prayed for the coming of the Holy Spirit. No! They did not pray for God to send His Holy Spirit. They got themselves ready and God sent Him according to Christ's promise. Power came because they obeyed God's law whereby he could manifest it."

Illustrating his theme at this point the evangelist stepped to the light switch which controls the pulpit lights and turning off the light he said, "If a man came in here that had never seen an electric light and I should tell him that if he would press that button light would come into this room. Now he might not believe me, but how we may get back to the power of the Holy Spirit, A Pentecostal Power and Blessing will come if we fulfill the conditions. I will also answer the question as to why Jesus said the bootlegger, the gambler and the racketeer is wiser than we church members."

Ray Harris led the great chorus choir in another inspiring praise service. Dick Choate favored the audience with two numbers on the xylophone. Mr. Harris and the choir sang a Negro spiritual "Walkin' in Jerusalem Just Like John." It was enthusiastically received by the great audience.

The only delegation observed last night was the Agogo class of the First Baptist church. A section in the center of the tabernacle was reserved for them. There were over thirty in the delegation.

The young people's conference, which is being led by Dick Coate, put on a pageant at the Christian church last night just preceding the revival service. The auditorium of the church was packed full of enthusiastic young people. They go from the conference to the tabernacle service each evening.

There will be a service as usual Saturday night. The Saturday night crowds have been good throughout the series of meetings thus far. It is expected that tomorrow night's crowd will be larger than usual as many farmers who have been attending up to this week have been quite busy with their work but can attend most conveniently on Saturday evening.

There will be a meeting for men only at the tabernacle Sunday afternoon at 2:30. Rev. Cantrell has announced that he will preach upon "Wine, Women and Gambling." There will be no service on Monday night. The services will resume for the week Tuesday night with another Sunday school night.

"What is the use of my trying to wind-jam God with our prayers, when it doesn't get us anywhere?" inquired the evangelist, as he resumed his discussion of the Power of Pentecost, the theme of four

BEGIN HERE TODAY
STAN CARREY, pretty, 19 and an orphan, works as secretary to ERNEST HEATH, Chicago architect. She lives with her aunt, who is exceedingly strict. BOB DUNBAR, heir to a large fortune, shows her attentions but he goes away without putting his admiration into words. JACK WARING, Heath's assistant, takes Susan for a drive one night and kisses her against her will. Susan hears that Dunbar has gone abroad. BEN LAMPMAN, young musician, asks her to marry him. She refuses but he asks her to think it over. Waring apologizes for acting the cad. Susan reads in a gossip column that Dunbar is to be married. Ernest Heath notices Susan's youth and freshness and wonders why his wife is so rude to her. Waring tells her that Bob is back in town.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
CHAPTER XXI

THE leaves turned and it was October again. In another month Susan would be 20. When she was busy she scarcely thought about the passage of time, but occasionally when she was tired or things had gone wrong she began to wonder whether she was drifting. It was all very well to be ambitious but where, after all, could she get with this particular job? She had no special flair for the work. She was faithful at routine but beyond that the business world, as Ray called it, disappointed her.

Rose had the right idea, Susan would think as she passed down the aisles of a big department store. Rose had chosen to work in a woman's world. When she reached this stage in her reflections Susan was sometimes conscious of a sense of panic. She must succeed at work because there was nothing else for her! She must repay Aunt Jessie for all she had done. It was only fair. It was well enough for other girls to chat idly of marriage, but that was not for her. Since she could not have the one she wanted, she would not content herself with second best.

Susan was passing the glove counter in a State street shop one day at noon hour when she heard someone call her name. The girl on the low stool held out one perfectly manured hand and said, "Sorry it's the left but you see the other one is busy."

Susan saw. The saleswoman was fitting a fruitless, fawn-colored glove. Denise Ackroyd regarded her shrewdly and as if on an impulse added, "Do have lunch with me. Won't you?"

Susan was too surprised to think of an excuse. The other girl ordered half a dozen pair of the gloves as casually as Susan might have bought a newspaper. The saleswoman's manner was markedly deferential.

"There. That's that!" said Denise. "Shopping is a horrid bore, isn't it?" She did not seem to require an answer but chattered on in that high imperious voice. "I suppose you're in a bit of a rush. Do you mind if we stop right here? The tearoom's not bad, really."

Not bad! Susan thought it the height of quiet luxury. She slipped into a chair at the candle-light table feeling uncommonly shabby beside this other girl. Denise threw a silver fox scarf carelessly aside and took her vanity kit from a mammoth snake skin bag.

"I look a wreck," she pointed, examining herself in the mirror. Susan seized this opportunity to frankly estimate her rival. It was as her rival she always thought of Denise. The other girl's skin had a clear, gardenia-white texture. It was almost translucent. Her fine brows were delicately arched and her whole face wore customarily an expression of careless disdain. All her belongings—the fur, the bag, her wadded little gloves, breathed a scent that was elusive and piquant. Susan thought it was mimosas but wasn't sure.

SHE felt tongue-tied and wondered why she had come. Why hadn't she thought of an excuse? What did this girl want of her? Determinedly she brought her attention back to what Denise was saying.

"So sorry to have broken up the party that day you and Bobby were lunching," she said. Susan pretended not to remember.

"Oh, well, then, it doesn't matter!" Denise said sweetly. "I thought there was a chance you might be taking him seriously and that would be bad."

"Would it? Why?" Susan's voice was grave. Denise laughed a silvery, little trickle of amusement. "Why? She asks me that." She raised her eyes in mock amazement. "Surely you know his reputation."

Susan dipped her spoon into the clear soup and fixed her candid gaze on the other girl. "I know very little about him," she said quietly, "except that he's pleasant and friendly."

"Oh, my dear, is that all?" There was the faintest edge in Denise's tone now. "He's charming, that man. He's a lamb but you have to know him through and through as I do—to well, to appreciate him."

We're practically been raised together," she went on, "and his father, well, he's an old darling, a pet. His father has always expected us to stop off some day."

Susan did not reply. By some miracle she managed to keep her fingers steady. If this were only over, she thought, wildly! If there were only some quiet, friendly cave into which she might creep and hide herself safe forever from the sound of that clear, arrogant, tormenting voice. But she was not to be let off so easily. Denise rippled on.

"It's not settled, of course, actually," she said. "That is, we haven't named a date or anything like that, but—well, I don't know. I think perhaps I'm too young to decide just now."

Susan managed a stiff-lipped smile.

"I'm just 18 you know," Denise pouted. "Of course I know most girls marry during their first season but I can't make up my mind."

Susan murmured something conventional. Afterward she could not have told what her part in the conversation had been. She longed only to escape from this bright, warm room and from her torturer.

"Of course there is no question about Bobby's ideas on the subject," said Denise, preening herself as naturally as a young peacock. She interrupted herself for a moment to bow prettily to several elderly women in black, proceeding in stately fashion toward a corner table.

"Dreadful old hens," Denise murmured. "What was I saying?"

SUSAN prompted her, automatically. "You said there was no question about Mr. Dunbar's feelings."

Denise smiled, diverted. "Do you honestly call him that? How funny!" she trilled. "I thought—that is, I got the impression the other night you knew each other rather well."

Susan's heart unaccountably lightened. So Robert had been speaking of her! This was balm.

"He thinks," continued Denise spitefully, "that you're smart. That's what he said. At least that's all I remember. I don't know how you happened to come into the conversation. We were driving and talking—just babbling on—you know how it is—and he said that."

"Well, it isn't much but it was something," Susan decided. She glanced at the watch she wore bound to her wrist by a plain, leather strap. It was a clumsy, sturdy timepiece. Aunt Jessie had given to her when she was graduated from high school. At the time it had seemed perfect and desirable. Now Susan thought it typified all that was poor and mean and shabby in her existence. She looked at the inoffensive watch and hated it.

Denise misinterpreted her frown and said, "It's all right if you have to rush. It must be poisonous to have to live on schedule but I suppose you've used to it."

Susan murmured, "Thanks for lunch. It's been nice seeing you."

"Denise stopped her. 'Just one minute. I wanted to ask you if you'd come out next week-end.'"

SUSAN frankly stared. "The Strineys are coming and they boy who's such a whiz at the piano. Your young man, I believe."

"Do you mean Ben? He's not mine," said Susan, hating herself for disclaiming him.

"Oh, really? I thought that was just one of those things. Well, it doesn't matter. He's coming, anyway. Could you manage the 3 o'clock from Northwestern Station on Saturday?"

Susan hesitated. In one wild flight she reviewed her wardrobe. Oh, the thing was impossible, of course. There was no sense to it. "Mummy's away," Denise babbled on, "or I wouldn't dare ask Sonia and Arnold. She calls them my zoo, but I do think they're fun." She seemed candid and innocent but Susan's suspicions were not allayed.

"I'm afraid I can't manage it," she replied. "My aunt—"

Denise cut in smoothly. "Oh, I forgot to say that Bobby will be there, of course," she murmured. Susan's thoughts veered. The temptation was enormous. Just to see him again, to touch his hand and hear his voice would be heaven. She wavered.

"Do come," Denise said. "I'll send you a time table. We'll probably go on to the club to dance if the old fogies aren't hogging the place as usual." Susan considered. In a lightning flash she decided.

It might be her last chance to see Robert before he married this cool, arrogant, little beauty. Does a thirsty man refuse water

HOW VAST UTILITY FINANCE PYRAMID FAILED

Money Wizard's Campaign of Conquest Captures the Power World Only to Hit Toboggan in Hard Times

Editor's note: This is the second of two stories on the life of Samuel Insull, America's foremost public utility magnate, whose giant Middle West Utilities Company is now in the hands of receivers in the largest business default in the world's history.

BY JOHN W. LOVE

Copyright, 1932, NEA Service Inc. The story of Samuel Insull's rise as a public utility magnate, recently climaxed by the receivership of his giant Middle West Utilities Company which was worth $2,500,000,000 at its peak, is no more amazing than the story of how he operated financially in building up his billions.

Beside the physical expansion of Insull's companies ran his remarkable financial system, equally the product of his genius. It is his financial system, represented by his holding companies, which is in trouble now. The operating companies are not involved in the receivership.

Just before the World War Insull set out on his campaign of conquest, buying property, scrapping little power stations and building new and larger ones, stringing his lines across the prairies and the mountains and along the lakes and the rivers and, finally the Atlantic ocean and the gulf. Gradually, his operations spread into 30 states from New England to Texas, in a wide variety of utilities which included ice plants, gas plants and other lines but was mostly power.

As Insull built an electric system he paid for it by bonds or notes which he sold to the public. He retained part or all of the common stock, which was the voting stock and therefore controlled the company, though he might have very little money in it.

Then he would sell his common stock to a holding company of his own, which owned the stocks of several similar properties.

Next he would issue notes with the stock of his holding company as security, and sell these notes to the public. This would give him funds to buy several more properties and form them into a similar holding company.

After he got together a series of holding companies he would unite them under another holding company, a sort of super-holding company, and repeat the process.

Frequently he would retain only a fraction of the stock of a holding company and sell the rest to the public, in a little lump. While the public would hold most of the stock, Insull would have by far the largest lump, and that gave him the management. Often he would not sell the stock, but only voting trust certificates which left unquestioned control with Insull and gave the stockholder the dividends. Insull believed in customers-ownership, but not stockholders' "interference."

So long as prices of public utilities were rising, and more and more people were using current and more and more had money to invest in the securities Insull always had for sale, there was no end to this method of expansion.

There were only two things that could come to a stop. One would be when Insull and others who were doing the same thing had bought all the power plants in sight. Another way would be when Insull and his rivals began bidding against each other for properties, and paying prices much higher than they needed to. A third way would be when the bottom would drop out of prices, including the cost of building a power plant.

All three things happened, more or less. Toward the end of the great bull market in stocks, and even well into 1930 and 1931, Insull was paying high prices for properties he wanted very much. His companies kept on building, though at a less rapid rate. They ran up bills and had to borrow from the banks. They ceased to be able to sell stocks to the public at the old speed, or even to sell stocks at all. Finally, their companies began to lose money.

One of the companies which lost money happens to be a street railway in Scranton, Pa. This street railway can be used to illustrate how the Middle West Utilities was put together.

The railway had a bonded debt of $7,000,000. It had $2,000,000 worth of common stock. This common stock was owned by the Municipal Service Company, which also owned other properties. The Municipal Service Company had a funded debt of $5,000,000 and capital stock besides.

But the Municipal Service Company was controlled by the National Electric Power Company, and on the security of its stock in National Public Service and other subsidiaries it had sold nearly $10,000,000 in notes.

Finally, National Electric Power was owned by the Middle West Utilities Company, the big Insull property which is now in trouble. The Middle West Utilities Company's subsidiaries, all of them together, had borrowed hundreds of millions, and Middle West Utilities had itself borrowed nearly $100,000,000.

Above the Middle West company were two more Insull holding companies, Corporation Securities, Inc., and Insull Utilities Investments.

Naturally, this inverted pyramid

West Utilities Company, now in the hands of receivers.

Though successful in building up a chain of public utilities worth billions, Samuel Insull experienced disappointment in his efforts to promote his wife's comeback as an actress and in trying to make his model electrified farm near Chicago show a profit. Above is a scene from his model farm—where every thing was done by electricity, including currying the cows with vacuum cleaners—which lost money steadily. At right is Mrs. Insull, formerly known on the stage as Gladys Wallis, upon whom Insull spent $200,000 in financing her attempted comeback. The chart shows a typical example of how Insull's hundreds of far-flung utilities were operated through a series of pyramided holding companies leading up to his giant Middle of finance was a fair-weather sort of structure.

So long as the myriad subsidiaries made money, the profits would pile up in a golden flood and pour in on the topmost holding company. But if many companies, like the little Scranton electric railway, began to lose money, the whole structure would lose money pretty fast. It would lose faster than anything could be done about it.

Middle West Utilities tried to save the situation by lending money to its subsidiaries, and these by lending money on down, and finally ally the loan would get down to the Scranton Electric, but as many little properties needed money they used it up faster than it could be furnished.

And so the farflung Middle West holding company finally toppled over.

Despite his rise as a power magnate, Insull had his disappointments. He could not make his experimental electrified farm pay. He had spent $200,000 in financing his wife's attempted comeback as an actress, but the effort failed. She had been on the stage before their marriage. He has been forced by the United States Senate to admit he had liberally financed Republican and Democratic campaigns.

He also financed the famous Chicago Civic Opera through many an unprofitable season, and is now having to leave it to stand on its own feet.

No master of diplomacy, Insull had gone directly after what he wanted, usually by buying it. The faster he bought, the faster his fortune grew, but the tidal slip of commodity prices finally overthrew him.

Daily Health Talk

"In and around any big building operation there is to be found a constant number of curious people who display a very definite interest in the activities connected with it. As a matter of fact, steam shovels, clanging elevator gongs, and the hurly-burly commotion associated with any large construction job are appealing to nearly everyone. On the other hand, one of the most marvelous pieces of engineering possible to study frequently goes on practically unheeded—except by the individual in whose mouth the job is being done. And his interest is only aroused because of the attendant discomfort," said Dr. L. W. Neber, Superintendent of the state Health Department's dental section, today.

"Indeed, the fact that everyone grows teeth has perhaps been responsible for making the average person quite blind to the phenomenal progress involved. Nature, however, does not turn out a prettier piece of work than she does in the development of the mature jaw.

"The first permanent molars erupt back of the baby molars. This occurs when the child is four or five years of age. There are four of them, two in each side of the upper and two in each side of the lower jaw. Nature permits matters apparently to rest when she has thus laid down the four 'keystones' until she is ready to allow the incisors to come out. Those make their appearance in the sixth, seventh and eighth years of the child's life. Follow the eight incisors in front of the molars, two each on both sides of the upper and lower jaws. This group takes its place from the ninth to the twelfth year. The dental arch is now clearly defined. And around the twelfth year the cuspids, commonly called eye teeth, erupt between the bicuspids and incisors.

"It is at this stage of the mouth's development, and in many instances sooner, when parents will be able to notice irregularity in the formation if it exists. Many children, for one reason or another, require dental straightening. No child should be permitted to develop irregularly placed teeth. Dental specialists recommended by your family dentist are prepared to remedy the condition. And the sooner this is done, the better.

"In the twelfth year the second molars come in directly back of the first permanent molars; and finally, between the ages of eighteen and twenty-five the third molars, popularly styled the wisdom teeth, grow into position.

"Such is the long, successfully planned, and usually beautifully executed job performed by nature to present the human being with the machinery required to masticate food. A really magnificent piece of work—which however will only remain such if one respects it by personal care and periodic dental attention."

THE HEART AS A DYNAMO

The Journal of the American Medical Association in a recent issue discussed the heart as an electrical generator and showed that the power of the human heart as a pump and as a working organ is most impressive.

The combined efforts of the hearts of the inhabitants of the United States approximate 70,000 horse power, delivering daily the energy equivalent of the flow of the Niagara river.

Despite this large energy output, the human heart is not very efficient as a dynamo. It has been estimated that if the electrical energy produced by the heart in its contractions were used for lighting purposes, it would require 1000 years to accumulate enough electrical energy to light up a small flashlight bulb for one second.

Despite the infinitesimally minute amount of electrical energy produced by the heart in its contractions, it has been possible since 1903 to use this electrical energy in diagnosis.

In 1903 Einthoven introduced the string galvanometer. Since his time the electro-cardiograph has been developed and perfected. By means of the modern electro-cardiograph, the electricity generated by the contracting heart can be observed and recorded, and this enables us to make more competent diagnosis and prognoses of heart disease.

With the great advance in electrical research and the practical development of the amplifying systems used in radio, it is now possible to step up, or to amplify greatly the original electricity generated by the heart in its contractions.

This much amplified picture enables us to study the heart's functions in a way comparable to that in which a microscope enables us to see minute and otherwise invisible bodies.

By means of these enlarged pictures or graphs, we may gather added information on the function of this essential organ.

GERMANS REPULSED

On April 22, 1918, fighting of great intensity broke out again between the British and the German troops opposing each other on the Lys sector. German attacks, in the main, were repulsed.

Reports that an early peace would be signed between Rumania and the central powers were current in western Europe. Rumania had been virtually a non-combatant since Russia's collapse.

Guatemala announced that it considered itself in the same position as the United States in the war. This amounted to a virtual declaration of war on Germany and her allies.

German losses since the beginning of the war were placed at 4,465,000 men by Karl Bliebtreu, German military statistician. This figure was more than double the correct amount, according to allied statistics, and observers in France and England were at a loss to understand it.

Permanent losses, according to German casualty lists, were not more than 1,700,000.
